DARTMOUTH FRESHMAN VANISHES

Now Phone Mrs. Curley Your Congratulations!

Tomorrow is the birthday of Mrs. James M. Curley, wife of the Mayor.

MRS. CURLEY.

A large number of citizens telephoned and wired their congratulations.

Why not do the same for Mrs. Curley?

The Mayor's home telephone number is Jamaica 3840. He and Mrs. Curley will be glad to hear from you.

The day will be spent quietly in the Jamaica Way mansion by Mr. and Mrs. Curley and their six children.

Rumor has it that the stork is again hovering over the Curley home.

GOV. COX PARDONS SLAYER, IN FOR LIFE

The big iron gate at the Charlestown State prison clanged shut in February, 1910 when through it stepped Raymond Plouff, sentenced to spend his life there.

He was convicted of murder.

Today the same old gate opened and Plouff stepped out. He had been pardoned by Gov. Cox.

Raymond Plouff

He was 26 years old when he entered. Today he approaches 40. But his heart is younger than his years. And in his eyes beams hope. He always maintained innocence and still does. But just the same he will celebrate Thanksgiving with a prayer, a gray-

WOMAN FATALLY BURNED, SINGEING HOLIDAY TURKEY

Worcester, Nov. 28.—Mrs. Lillian Hogan, was singeing her Thanksgiving turkey with a lighted newspaper today when her house gown caught fire and she ran screaming into the yard, a human torch. Blanche Sylvester, a neighbor, ran to the yard and extinguished the flames by wrapping Mrs. Hogan in an overcoat.

Mrs. Hogan was taken to the Memorial Hospital, where it is said she will die. She is burned about the head, body and arms.

While the neighbors were assisting Mrs. Hogan the house caught fire and was practically destroyed. William M. Hogan, the husband, was at work when the tragedy occurred.

PROVIDENCE BANK CLOSED; HAD CHRISTMAS CLUB FUND

Providence, Nov. 28.—The Cosmopolitan Trust Company was ordered closed at noon today by Bank Commissioner George H. Newhall. This action followed the taking over on Monday last by the Rhode Island Hospital Trust Company of the business of the Westminster Bank to save it from forced liquidation. The Cosmopolitan Trust cleared largely through the Westminster Bank. It had nearly a million in small deposits and a large Christmas club fund, mostly from Italians of small means.

HANOVER STUDENT VANISHES

Dartmouth Freshman Is Believed to Have Worried Over His Studies

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 28.—The eleven days' absence from Dartmouth College of Martin McLain, Jr., of Seattle, Wash., a freshman, has led the college authorities to broadcast the news of his disappearance.

He left Hanover on November 17 with a small sum of money, apparently for a brief trip, and no word from him has since reached the college or his home.

McLean is thought to have been worrying about his studies, but his standing was satisfactory and he was known to be serious-minded and conscientious.

He is described as five feet nine inches in height, good looking, with a clean-cut full face, dark brown hair and dark eyes.

He was probably dressed in a dark blue suit, a gray velour hat and gray chinchilla overcoat.

VILLA HURTS ANKLE; TREMAINE GO OFF

New York, Nov. 28.—Pancho Villa, flyweight champion of the world, will not meet Carl Tremaine at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. The Filipino twisted his ankle in training this afternoon and as a result will be unable to fight.

MAN AND HIS HORSE KILLED IN CRASH WITH ONE-MAN CAR

Brockton, Nov. 28.—Luigi Lenoci, aged fifty-one, Franklin street, Whitman, died this morning at the Brockton Hospital. His horse and wagon was struck by a one-man trolley car. The horse was killed instantly.

Lenoci died shortly after at the hospital from a fractured skull. He also had two broken legs, several broken ribs and other injuries.

The trolley, after striking the equipage, pushed it nearly thirty yards from the point of impact.

GOLD COMING TO POMEROY FOR HIS 64TH BIRTHDAY

Gifts of gold are coming in for Jesse Pomeroy, Charlestown's historic "lifer," Thanksgiving being his sixty-fourth birthday. One $10 gold piece came from Colonel Walter Scott of New York and another from Rev. John W. McMahon of St. Mary's Church, Charlestown. Between sixty-five and seventy-five postcards and two bouquets have arrived. He is now on his forty-eighth year behind bars.

Prisoners at the institution will, tomorrow, eat Thanksgiving dinner of pork chops, boiled onions, mashed potatoes, squash, home-made mince pie, coffee, and one cigar each will wind it up. The prisoner's this year number 638.

North End Man Stages Tragedy When Maid Refuses to Sail for Italy

Loretta Da Vinna, of No. 166 Prince street, North End, gave little black-eyed Jennie Giordani $100 some time ago to pay her way to Italy to rejoin her husband.

"It is best, my child," said Loreta, with fatherly interest. "America has many pitfals. A young woman like you should be with your good man Tony. You have too much life, too much beauty."

'I shal go, padre,' murmured the star-eyed girl, taking the money.

But she didn't.

Today Lorotta met her at Parmenter and Hanover streets.

"Where is the money?" said he.

"Alas,' sighed little Jennie, "It is gone."

A moment later she was lying on the sidewalk with seven vicious stabs in her breast and body. By her lay Loretta, with two self-inflicted wounds in his left side.

'It is better,' he murmured, in his own blood, "that you should die than go astray."

In Relief Hospital it was said both would recover.

First aid treatment by Dr. A. Samuel Wingersky of No. 845 Hanover street, who stood nearby, saved the young woman's life. He bound the wounds with rags averting death by

THE CHARGE OF CONSTABULARY ON BOXFORD INN

POLICE USE BAYONETS IN RAID ON HOTEL

By HAROLD R. HALL

Boxford, Nov. 28.—'Twas a slow night at the Pine Grove Inn. Outside a cold, clammy rain beat steadily against the heavily curtained windows of the widely known roadhouse while the wind howled dismally.

In the main dining room of the inn two pleasure-seeking youths and their female companions sought solace in coffee cocktails. Over in one corner Charley, the piano player, pounded out the well-known "banana song," and Mike Wheatley, one-time member of McGraw's New York Giants, shrilled forth the words of that national air in a squeaky tenor.

Near the front door Joseph Hodicki, otherwise known as Joe, "the bouncer," shifted uneasily from one foot to the other. Joe craved action. The sound of the storm awoke memories of the nights Joe spent in the trenches.

The piano and Mike drowned out the drone of a motor car as it pulled up in front of the inn.

SLASH COST ALL OVER COUNTRY

Thanksgiving Birds 19 Cents in Chicago, 20 in New York; Vast Quantities in Markets

Boston's turkey market is today a Waterloo.

Also the turkey marts of the nation.

There lies, figurtively speaking, a fine old turkey, cold and stiff. Standing, dazed and pained, an army of dealers.

The bird they gaze at so stiff and cold once laid them big fat golden eggs every Thanksgiving.

He's dead now and his eggs are no more. And what is galling is the fact that they slew him.

After a steady drop since Monday, due to the price-cutting onslaught of a chain store grocery syndicate, the turkey market opened in Boston today, the day before the greatest feast day of the year, with another five-cent cut in prices and no business.

And not only that but wholesalers

COOLIDGE REFERS CRAIG PARDON TO DAUGHERTY

Washington, Nov. 28.—A formal application for the pardon of Comptroller Craig of New York, now facing 60 days in jail for contempt of court, was referred by the White House to the Department of Justice for action. The application was sent to the White House by Senator Copeland, Democrat, of New York. President Coolidge directed that it be sent to the department for an opinion as to the President's powers.

DEMPSEY GETS FIRPO OFFER; KEARNS HIDES "ANGEL'S" NAME

New York, Nov. 28. (I.N.S.)—Jack Kearns, ensconsed at one of the local hotels, declared today that he had received an offer from a syndicate to stage another bout between his champion, Jack Dempsey, and Louis Firpo, the Argentine challenger, next Summer. Kearns declined to divulge the identity of those behind the offer.

He added that Dempsey would arrive here within ten days but said that the champion would not appear in the ring this Winter. In addition to Firpo, the champion stood ready to take on Tom Gibbons and Harry Wills when suitable offers were made, Kearns declared.

BAYONETS USED IN INN RAID

Stealthily ten minions of the law—members of the Massachusetts State Constabulary, headed by Lieutenant Beaupree—crept up to the front door.

There was a clatter of steel as the boys from Rowley and Framingham unlimbered for action.

Then—crash! bang! The oaken door almost leaped from its hinges. Joe, the bouncer, bristled like a wolf-hound as the command, "Open in the name of the law" rang out.

Joe opened the door, and as the ten husky members of the constabulary started their rush, he met them as one strong man meets another with his fists.

A club swished through the air and Joe crashed to the floor.

He bounced right up again and another club smashed down on his skull splitting it the length of three inches. Joe was still.

"Forward men" came the command and Mike Wheatley, Charley and the two young couples stood with open mouths as the minions of the law dashed wildly through the main dining room armed with clubs, pistols, fire axes and bayonets.

Yes, sir, a real bayonet charge just like the boys were wont to do when rushing a band of gray uniformed Boches way back in the days of the late war. At least that is what Mike and Charley and Joe swear is the actual truth.

"If a man moves in this room he is potted," shouted one of the constabulary.

REAL BAYONET CHARGE

That command was not necessary. Mike was too disgusted, while Charley and the two young couples were so frightened that they fairly shrank into their chairs.

"I wouldn't have moved if someone had offered me a million dollars," declared Charley. "No, sir. A gun was sticking right up close against my stomach, and I was rooted to that piano stool."

"What's all this about?" asked Mike, when he finally regained his composure.

"We are here to search this dump," was the answer.

Followed considerable argument concerning the search warrant, and then the search was on. Still armed to the teeth, the officers went through the three floors of the inn, and found nothing.

Then they adjourned to the kitchen where they uncovered four quarts of whiskey, one gallon of wine, fifty gallons of ale, and a quantity of hard cider and real, old-fashioned beer.

"There must be a still around here," commented one of the officers.

"Here is the mash," shouted another as he excitedly yanked the lids off two crocks and sniffed.

Mike spat disgustedly as he exclaimed, "Hell, that is picalili. We use that in our hot dog sandwiches, you fool."

COCKTAILS DUMPED

And while the officers were trying to decide whether or not Mike was lying, he calmly carried two coffee cocktails over to the sink and dumped them out under the noses of the State John Laws.

And then they departed as they had come—and the rain continued beating against the windows.

Joe was gathered up from the floor and a doctor came and put fourteen stitches in his head. Charles mopped up the blood from the floor.

Friday morning Mike, who owns the inn, will appear in court at Haverhill before Judge Winn charged with illegal possession with intent to sell.

"After that," declared Mike, "I shall carry the matter to the higher courts. I shall not stop until I get to Washington. I am a fighter. If that is the way to conduct a raid, then I want to have the methods changed. That is all I have to say now."

JOE WANTS DAMAGES

"And as for me," said Joe, "I want damages. They can't charge me with bayonets and clubs and fire axes and get away with it. No sir. I was in the army. I am a fighter."

But the State constabulary at Rowley branch declare that they did not use bayonets, clubs and fire axes. An officer, who would not give his name, declared that Joe must have fallen against a door when he split his head. Joe says he knows a door from a club, and also says he knows a bayonet when he sees one, having used them in the war.

Charley won't say a word. Won't even tell his last name. And the two young couples have vanished as though into thin air. They did not give their names when they entered the inn, and they forgot to give them when they sneaked out into the rain after the charge of the light brigade.

TURKEYS SLUMP TO LOW FIGURE

loaded up with birds they expected to reap a fortune on were making frantic attempts to get out from under with an even break or small losses. They wanted to unload even at a loss but had nowhere to unload them. Nobody it appears, wants turkeys. Why?

CAUSE OF IT ALL

"Because," said a retailer in Faneuil Hall Market, "during the last few years big dealers pyramided prices on birds every Thanksgiving and Christmas to prohibitive levels.

"Annually they made a killing. Gradually folks who took great pride in placing a bird on their table twice a year swallowed their pride and used a substitute, a loin of pork, fresh ham, chicken or duck. They had to.

"They couldn't pay the price. Imagine their satisfaction to discover that the turkey feast had been purely a bit of sentiment, a habit handed down from the Pilgrims, and that they actually found their substitutes more palate tickling.

"This year with turkeys forced down to pre-war level the Boston public is indifferent. But I am not surprised. I saw it coming. They are buying what they like for tomorrow's feast day having killed for all time the old bugaboo that Thanksgiving 'ain't' Thanksgiving without a turkey."

DOWN TO 25 CENTS

Today turkeys are retailing all over Boston at from 25 to 65 cents per pound, with business not even normal. In Chicago they are as low as 19 cents per pound; in New York 20 cents.

Tonight may usher into being the greatest scene ever beheld in Boston's market history when it is expected retailers will be unloading at any price to get their stock off the shelves. You may be able to buy a choice bird at your own price. In other words feel its breast bone and write your own ticket.

The same is true in all the big cities out West. Hourly dispatches show the turkey market is rapidly becoming demoralized.

STAGGERING LOSS.

In Boston since Monday one of the biggest turkey dealers in New England took a staggering loss as he saw the turkey market crumble. He bought thousands of birds at 46 cents a pound. The wholesale market was then 49 cents. He sold out at 42 cents a pound, a loss of three cents on every pound of turkey flesh.

He did not dare to risk what was once the fashion—putting the birds into cold storage. Because what chain stores have accomplished at Thanksgiving he knows can be duplicated at Christmas. This holds true in all cities.

Another big dealer today had on his hands a car containing 521 boxes and seventy-five barrels of turkeys, with no place to sell them.

Stories of huge losses suffered by other big dealers were current in the Faneuil Hall district.

At noon the market was slack and weak.

Stalls were loaded with fine-looking birds, the best, from Vermont, selling at 60 and 65 cents per pound. Their only company was butcher-frocked clerks.

Amoskeag Mills to Reopen

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 28.—An announcement was made today by the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company that with the reopening of three more mills in the cotton division next Monday morning more than 50 per cent. of the normal number of operatives would have returned to work.

On Monday the worsted division of the company will curtail to a three-day week. Unfavorable trade conditions in the worsted market are assigned as the reason.

ASKED HIS opinion of Mr. Craig's sentence for contempt of court, W. G. McAdoo writes this writer as follows:

"Comptroller Craig's criticism never seemed to me to exceed legal or professional propriety. The freedom to make fair comment upon judicial action is just as essential to the operation and security of democratic institutions as a like freedom to comment on the acts of other governmental departments.

"I do not believe that the ends of law and order can be served best by granting immunity to the judiciary from fair criticism. Otherwise, we are in danger of establishing a judicial tyranny.

"Since the Supreme Court has sustained Judge Mayer's position, I should, if in his place, remit the sentence on the ground that the dignity and authority of his court have been sufficiently vindicated and that no further action is necessary in the case of the technical contempt, which, as I understand it, was not intentional.

"W. G. McADOO."

W. G. McAdoo is at present the most conspicuous candidate for the Democratic nomination. Hiram Johnson, most conspicuous Republican candidate, outside the White House, has already expressed himself vigorously on the Craig case.

Apparently, the process of stopping criticism by sending critics to jail is not taken kindly in America.

WHAT PRESIDENT COOLIDGE will do is not yet announced. It does not seem probable that he will fail to use his power to rebuke star chamber methods.

Mr. McAdoo speaks of the Supreme Court having "sustained Judge Mayer's position." The Supreme Court, however, did not decide the case in full, by any means. It merely declared that Mr. Craig's lawyers had gone the wrong way about setting aside the sentence for contempt. And Justices Holmes and Brandeis emphatically denounced the sentence imposed.

If Judge Mayer is wise and listens to public opinion, instead of heeding sycophants that surround all judges, he will find a way out of the difficulty for himself.

WHEN beavers need houses, they cut down trees, dam a stream, thus build, with entrance below the water, safe and warm. No one ever saw a beaver wondering, "Where can I find a place to live?"

That nonsense is left to men, of whom millions, with all their science and intellect, now lack decent housing, even in this rich nation.

S. W. STRAUS, of New York and Chicago, who has built houses all over the United States, financing within twenty years probably more building of homes than any other ten men, recently discussed the housing problem with President Coolidge. Mr. Straus told the President that this nation, for building alone, will require eight billions of capital in the immediate future.

IT'S A big program, but it has this good side:

It means continuation of good times in building, much work and good pay for mechanics for years ahead.

If work can be kept plentiful and wages good, there will be no need about worry as regards prosperity.

SENATOR FERRIS, of Michigan, in a farewell talk to the "home town," says great fortunes should not be used at their discretion by heirs, ignorant of life. He proposes not merely to tax inheritances, but to absorb them, the government taking virtually all.

It does seem foolish for the child of a reservation Indian or the half-Filipino child of an American soldier to inherit, with the "right" to squander, millions of oil dollars.

But there is something involved more important than the squandering of some millions or even billions.

The country's development

'Miss Atlanta' Who Accused Son of Coca Cola King

Fotograms

MRS. SARAH GILLESPIE BYFIELD

New York, Nov. 28.—Mrs. Sarah Gillespie Byfield, known as "Miss Atlanta" in the beauty contest to be judged at Madison Square Garden tonight, declared that Walter T. Candler had offered to settle out of court, her $100,000 damage suit.

Mrs. Byfield, who was voted the most beautiful girl in Atlanta and designated to represent that thriving Southern metropolis in the beauty contest, is stopping at the Waldorf.

More than a year ago she instituted the suit against Candler, son of Asa G. Candler, millionaire of Atlanta, alleging that he attacked her in her stateroom on the Berengaria while her husband was in the ship's lounge.

With her husband, an automobile salesman, she had accompanied Candler on a trip to France as governess of his two little daughters.

Candler is alleged to have given Byfield a note for $25,000 which was to be paid upon their return to Atlanta in return for his keeping secret the alleged affair on the ship.

MOROS RAISE RED FLAG; FOUR KILLED IN BATTLE

Manila, Nov. 28 (A.P.)—Four Moros were killed in a clash with constabulary near Bayan, in Lanao, Islanad of Mindanao, according to a despatch from the Governor of the province.

There were no casualities among the constabulary forces.

The red flag, Moro symbol of unrest, has been raised in several sections of Lanao.

Zamboanga, Mindanao Province, P. I., Nov. 28. (A.P.)—The American Chamber of Commerce of Mindanao and Sulu today cabled President Coolidge, asking his immediate consideration of the proposal for separation of the Islands of Mandanao, Sulu and Palawan from the Philippine Government as an organized territory under the American flag.

WORKERS RAPIDLY RESTORING OLD WAYSIDE INN FOR FORD

Carpenters, plumbers, electricians, painters and other housesmiths of all the fifty-seven varieties are swarming over Henry Ford's Wayside Inn in South Sudbury.

When they have completed their work it is doubtful if the late Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, whose "Tales of a Wayside Inn" made it famous, would know the place. But William Hager, who built it nearly 200 years ago, would recognize it instantly, and approve of Ford and all his works there. Hager was a live wire, himself, even if he did have to sign all his documents with a cross.

It is reported Ford is negotiating for a rare collection of Abraham Lincoln relics in Washington, and that if his bid of $50,000 is accepted by the present owner they will be displayed at Wayside Inn. Washington historical societies are trying to secure the collection for the capital city.

TAKE 'HUSBANDLESS VOW'; THEN SAIL FOR NEW ZEALAND

Southampton, Nov. 28.—Forty English girls sailed for New Zealand today, bound, under solemn contract, to remain husbandless for at least a year.

They left in charge of a matron under the "domestic help scheme," with a "no wedding clause" in their contracts made necessary by a rush of suitors. Some of the forty took the husbandless pledge solemnly—a few laughingly.

About fifty per cent. of the 2,500 girls sent in the past three years under this plan, which includes free passage to New Zealand and pocket money, have abandoned single blessedness.

Large Part of East Boston Aroused During Pursuit of Four Suspects

East Boston, in the vicinity of Central Square, was awakened with a start early today by the popping of pistols and the heavy tread of feet.

To nightcapped watchers who shot heads out of bedroom windows into the cold, cold night the neighborhood had the dizzy air of the climax to a musical comedy burglar show. Around corners came policemen. Into the air barked revolvers. Just ahead of both were what seemed like an army of burglars.

In reality there were only four and half that many bluecoats.

Patrolman Goodman at Liverpool and Decatur streets heard glass crash. He ran into Liverpool street. Three men hopped out of No. 144—Whipple Wood, woodwork plant.

"Stop," yelled Goodman.

They stepped a bit faster.

The patrolman fired a bullet into the air. Patrolman McKee from nearby came on the run. Turning into Border street he saw four men. He yelled and fired four times. The men continued to run. The chase became a dizzy run through a maze of streets leading away from Central Square.

It ended with the neighborhood awake and the cops with two prisoners. They gave their names as Anthony J. Desta, 18 years old, 195 Maverick street, East Boston, and Fred Marley, 20, 34 Decatur street, East Boston.

They were arraigned in East Boston court charged with attempted burglary.

$4,000 GEMS STOLEN AT FRELINGHUYSEN'S

New York, Nov. 28.—Gems valued at $4,000 were stolen from the Summer home of former United States Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen at Raritan, N. J., November 11, it was learned today.

Ex-Senator Frelinghuysen.

Most of the gems were the property of Mrs. Frelinghuysen, Peter Frelinghuysen Boots by U. and it and many of them were family heirlooms. Mr. Frelinghuysen admitted no clue had been obtained to the thieves or the gems.

JUDGE KEYES BREAKS LEG LEAVING AUTO

Concord, Nov. 28.—Judge Prescott Keyes of the District Court here is confined to his bed today with a broken leg. His automobile stalled Tuesday evening on Main street and when he got down from his seat he fell and broke his shin bone. Dr. Charles W. Hopkinson and Patrolman James D. Cost took Judge Keyes home and the fracture was reduced there. He is suffering considerable pain today, but his physician says that the accident was not serious.

Poor Dicky! Born Under Unlucky Star, Dies as Seer Foretold

THE LATE "DICKY."

Pet cat, owned by East Boston woman, whose death was predicted by the horoscope reading from its birth.

Pet Cat's Horoscope Showed It Was Not Long for World

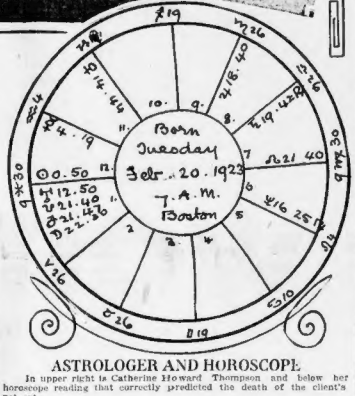
This is the story of a cat's horoscope.

Nothing like the cat's meow or the cat's eyebrows.

The cat is, or rather was, Dicky, valued pet of Mrs. Antoinette B. Hart of No. 820 Saratoga street, East Boston.

Dicky, it seems, was born at an unfortunate moment—at 7. a. m. of February 20, 1923, to be exact. His planets at birth were heavily afflicted. He was born for accidents.

If Dicky hadn't chosen Mrs. Hart as his mistress there never would have been any such thing as the cat's horoscope.



ASTROLOGER AND HOROSCOPE.

SAD NEWS

One Friday Mrs. Hart attended a class in astrology conducted by Catherine Howard Thompson in Trinity Court, No. 175 Dartmouth street.

Mrs. Hart's horoscope proved so helpful that some time later when Dicky appeared ailing she took Dicky to Mrs. Thompson to have his chart read.

Mrs. Thompson drew up Dicky's chart and handed Mrs. Hart the sad news. "Your cat will not be in this world long," she said. "He was born for accidents. Death will come to him on the ninth or tenth day of October unless you are very careful. Death will come through the air—will concern the head and affect the stomach."

"What a horrible horoscope!" exclaimed Mrs. Hart.

"It's the cat's horoscope," replied Mrs. Thompson.

"It's the cat's finish," wailed Mrs. Hart.

And it was.

The other day Mrs. Thompson received a letter from Mrs. Hart telling her how grievously true her reading of Dicky's horoscope had been.

DIES OF POISON

"I am writing to tell you," the letter read, "that all you told me of has happened. This little cat WAS of just the nature you so clearly described, as loving and almost as intelligent as a human being. He died on September 10th from poisoning.

"The only discrepancy that I could find in the entire horoscope was, that the month was September instead of October. The dates were absolutely correct, for the Kitty was taken ill on the 9th and died early on the 10th.

"The poison was thrown from a piazza, thus passing through the air. The cat ate it, and of course died from the effect of the poison on the stomach. Furthermore, he did go far from home, as he was taken to the Animal Hospital and died there, far from home and family, as you said.

"I think it most wonderful that you can forecast events with such startling truth, even to the life of the "least of these."

GETS CONSOLATION

"On a later visit to your office and further conversation on the subject, I was much consoled for the loss of my little pet, by the fact that you told me that I was in no way to blame for the Kitty's death, that he was surely born for accidents, and that his planets at birth were so heavily afflicted, that he could not in any event, have lived but a short time longer.

"Thanking you so much for your valuable forecast, and wishing you always health and happiness,

"I remain,

"Cordially yours,

"(Signed) ANTOINETTE B. HART."

That is the story of the cat's horoscope.

The cat's meow is a dead number. So is Dicky.

'SLUGGER JACK' CLUBS R. I. GIRL; FIFTH VICTIM

Warwick, R. I., Nov. 28.—Miss Bertha Murray of Centreville is the latest victim of "Jack-the-Slugger," who has terrorized this community for two weeks.

She is the fifth person felled by the slugger's bludgeon since Mrs. Leon Didoski was knocked down on Washington street a fortnight ago.

The assault, like previous ones, was unprovoked and was not followed up by any attempt to rob or inflict further injury.

One blow with his weapon, believed to be a length of iron pipe, or bar iron, fells his victim, and "Jack-the-Slugger" slinks off in the darkness. He always approaches his victim from behind and none has been able to give the police a description of him.

Miss Murray had been at St. James' Church, Arctic, Tuesday evening and was walking to her home about 9:40 o'clock when struck down on Main street. The blow stunned her but she was able to reach her home unassisted.

Although her abundant hair was done high on her head and she wore a heavy felt hat, Dr. Daniel S. Harrop took several stitches in a gaping wound in her scalp.

Chief Thomas E. Harrop, of West Warwick has put several extra officers on duty in the Centreville and Arctic sections, but they have been unable to find a clue to the identity of the slugger.

Chief Harrop believes that the thug is demented and is investigating several persons who are known to be mentally weak.

Of the slugger's five victims in this section three have been women and two men.

DEELY NOT HER HUSBAND, SAYS MISS LA MARR

Los Angeles, Nov. 28.—"Bernard Deely never was my husband, so how can he sue me for divorce?"

This is the inquisitive paraphrase of a mass of legal phrases filed in Superior Court here by Barbara La Marr, motion picture actress.

In his suit, Deely charged desertion and named the actress's present husband, Jack Dougherty, as co-respondent.

Miss La Marr contends she and Deely never were legally married, owing to divorce law technicalities; and, when she so ascertained, she had the purported marriage annulled, leaving her free.

Deely said he married the actress in 1918 at Fort Lee, N. J., while they were associated in vaudeville.

FIANCE ENDS LIFE WHEN, LOVE COOLS

Police Believe Providence Man Intended to Kill Girl as Well as Himself

Providence, R. I., Nov. 28.—Discovery that his sweetheart loved another is believed by police to be the reason James Moffitt, twenty-six, shot himself to death in the room of Miss Ethel Barrett, twenty-four, in a boarding house at No. 1293 Westminster street.

This is based on the story of Mrs. Nanie M. Douglas, the young woman's landlady.

Moffitt, a head waiter at the Colonial Farm Inn, North Attleboro, visited her every Monday, his day off.

Mrs. Douglas told police Miss Barrett was keeping steady company with a Providence man. Police have learned this man's name is Harmon and that he is in an automobile accessory business in this city.

Police believe Moffitt went to the Westminster street boarding house to kill both himself and sweetheart, but that his love for her caused him to falter in taking her with him in death.

GIRL TELLS OF TRAGEDY.

For the first time Moffitt reappeared this week on Tuesday and called on the girl. The reason is unknown. Miss Barrett told police of the last fatal visit.

They had a talk. He broached his love. They discussed the future and their present relations of affection. He reproached her, saying she didn't love him any more.

He then asked her to lunch. She refused, saying she had promised to go to the home of her sister, Mrs. Edna Cappozzi, at No. 33 Chapin street, nearby.

"You don't care for me any more, Ethel," he reproached her.

"Oh, yes, I do," she replied.

"Then will you kiss me good-bye?" he entreated.

She refused.

DROPS DEAD BEFORE GIRL.

Whipping out a 25-calibre automatic, Moffitt placed it to his right temple and fired. He fell dead at the feet of the horrified girl.

Screaming, she summoned the landlady, who, in turn, called the police.

"Everybody liked James. He was a wonderful fellow."

This is the tribute of the girl for love of whom he took his life.

She denies that she and Moffitt were engaged.

In Moffitt's pocket were letters from a younger sister at St. Vincent's Home, Fall River. He has a brother and a married sister on Seventeenth street, the latter city.

MANY IN PERIL AS TRUCK CRASHES

A number of pedestrians on School street narrowly escaped injury today when a heavy truck, owned by the Globe-Wernicke Company of Federal street, ran onto the sidewalk and shattered the glass canopy over the Parker House entrance.

The crash of glass mingled with women's screams, was heard in City Hall and a number of officials rushed to the street under the impression that a bad accident had occurred.

Even the truck driver had escaped injury, however, and a small boy, stealing a ride on the rear of the vehicle, although shaken up, hastily disappeared down the street before the arrival of the police.

The truck swung into School street from Tremont street, and, according to witnesses, was crowded to one side by an automobile. The driver of the truck lost control and the big machine mounted onto the sidewalk.

KIN OF FLOGGED BOY GET $20,000

Langdon, N. D., Nov. 28.—Payment of $20,000 has been made by the Putnam Lumber Company to the fmily of Martin Tabert of Munich, N. D., who died in a convict labor camp conducted by the company in Florida, following a flogging given by Walter Higginbotham, "whipping boss."

This payment has been accepted by the Tabert family as settlement of its claims against the lumber company.

The settlement will in no way affect the handling of the case of Higginbotham, who has appealed to the Florida Supreme Court to have the verdict of second-degree murder, found against him, set aside.

FIVE PRETTY CHILDREN AT HEALTH CLINIC

FIVE OF WELL NOURISHED GIRLS

At left, Lorraine Barlow, three years, eight months old, of No. 6 Hobart street, Roxbury; in circle, Dorothy Young, five years old, No. 7 Atherton street, Roxbury; at right, Marjorie Brymer, two and one-half years old, No. 31 Hemlock street, Roslindale. Below, at left, Mary Maglione, six years old, of No. 76 North Margin street, North End; at right, Ellen Marie Logue, 3½ years old, of No. 27 Union Park street, South End.

The fame of the Better Babies Clinic, conducted by the Boston Health Department, aided by the American, is drawing large crowds of mothers and their babies to the Municipal Building, West Brookline street and Shawmut avenue, South End, every afternoon. The second day of the clinic showed even a larger attendance than the first day.

Experts were loud in their praise of the health of the children examined. "The children are a beautiful, healthy group, obviously of the best type," Dr. Robert B. Hunt, the consulting physician, said.

Dr. Hunt expressed the opinion that the clinic should be held at least once a year.

The doctors who volunteered their services in helping Dr. Bailey were: Dr. Francis Roach, Dr. Harold Simmonds, Dr. Cyril Lydon, Dr. S. J. Wilkins, Dr. E. A. Meserve, Dr. Thomas S. O'Leary, and Dr. Robert B. Hunt was the consultant. Miss Roxanna Murphy and Miss Margaret Kennedy were sent over from the Harvard Graduate School by Dr. George Pratt. They were in charge of the psychology examinations.

The children examined were: Myron I. Rowell, jr., No. 82 Myrtle street; Willard J. Van Woode, No. 88 Lathgow street, Dorchester; Doris Chalmer, No. 315 Washington street; Marilynn F. Campbell, No. 172 Kittredge street, Roslindale; Herbert L. LIFER PLOUFF IS GIVEN PARDON

er of thanks that he was given his freedom again.

Plouff was convicted of murdering Dr. Henry N. Stone, a newburyport dentist. He worked and lived on the farm of the physician's sister in Harvard. One night he drove the doctor from the farm to the railroad station. The next day the physician's body was found on the roadside. He had been shot and clubbed to death. His pocketbook was gone.

This was Sept. 13, 1909. The following day Plouff was arrested. In his pocket police found blood-stained bills. Conviction in the second degree followed in February, 1910.

Plouff was the last man to be tried before two judges sitting jointly in Superior Court. The law was amended following that trial.

In prison Plouff became a model prisoner. Of late years he has been an outside trusty. The late Warden Shattuck frequently recommended his pardon, also Mrs. Shattuck and their daughter.

Today the pardon was recommended by the parole board of the Governor's council, the pardon committee waiting on Gov. Cox. The chief executive signed it this morning. This afternoon Plouff was free.

But he isn't a jobless one. James B. Henderson of the real estate firm of Henderson & Ross offered Plouff a job in a lumber yard.

He made the offer before the pardon was granted and renewed it afterward, pledging to the pardon board to see that the ex-lifer was cared for.

TAXI MURDER CASE ENDS IN MISTRIAL

Deland, Fla., Nov. 28.—A mistrial in the case of George Burns, charged with murder in connection with the death of Howard Usher, a taxi driver, today was delared in court here. The jury deliberated for thirty-six hours.

GONE AS DAY OF WEDDING NEARS

Leicester, Nov. 28.—On the day when he was to have gone to the altar of St. Joseph's Church with Miss Annie A. Mocklar of Cherry Valley, Francis H. McNulty, late of that town, is missing.

McNulty was last seen about town on Friday night. Where he is or why he went, no one knows.

The bride-to-be, left waiting almost on the steps of the church, is reported out of town. She is 27 years of age and owns a grocery near the Cherry Valley schoolhouse.

The store is closed.

The groom-to-be gave his age as 33, born in Lowell.

THREE HURT IN $1,500,000 DETROIT FIRE

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 28.—Fire starting from an overheated stove in a watchman's shanty early today destroyed the Detroit & Windsor Ferry Company dock, housing United States Immigration and Customs offices, spread to the six-story Munger building, which was burned to the ground, and then destroyed a four-story warehouse and several small buildings on Woodward avenue and Bates street.

When the fire was brought under control a few minutes after 5 o'clock this morning the total loss was estimated at $1,500,000.

The fire was fanned by a high gale. Many of the buildings burned had been standing for fifty years.

Three persons were injured, one probably seriously.

Frank Kelley, a fireman, was knocked from a ladder when a hose slipped from the hands of hosemen. He fell thirty feet.

Robert Yates, the watchman, was burned about the face and hands when he attempted to check the fire. Carl Kreslin, another watchman, was overcome by smoke.

Every downtown fire company, many from the outlying sections and three fireboats fought the flames.

Ten minutes after the first alarm had been sounded the fire had eaten into the Finisterwald warehouse, and great flames that lighted up Windsor, across the Detroit River, were shooting skyward. Before the fire company could reach the scene, the flames had spread to the six-story Munger building across an ally.

GERMANS BUY HUGE SHIP MINNESOTA

Marine Held in Theft

Lawrence J. Preston, corporal in the United States Marine Corps and detailed for duty as postal clerk in the U. S. S. Utah, was before Judge Morton in United States Court today on a charge of embezzling $513.60 in postoffice money orders. He was held in $3,000 bail for trial.

EXPECT PARDON FOR U. S. WAR PRISONERS

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 28 (I.N.S.)—Recommendations for release of a large number of persons still confined in Federal prisons on political charges of the war period were discussed at a conference here by the Right Rev. Charles H. Brent, Protestant Episcopal bishop of Western New York; Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War in President Wilson's Cabinet and General Harboard, U. S. Army.

It is said the three men named were requested in the name of President Coolidge to study the merits of petitions for a general pardon of political prisoners and that the President is regarded as almost certain to accept and act on the recommendations.

Bishop Brent was the commanding chaplain with General Pershing's forces in France and ranking clergyman of the United States Army during the war.

M. J. REIDY HEADS NEW CITY BUREAU

Former Representative Michael J. Reidy of South Boston today accepted the position of assistant secretary to Mayor Curley. He was given the title of Director of the Bureau of Information, a newly created city institution.

Mayor Curley nominated Mr. Reidy for the street commission, but the civil service board withheld approval. The Mayor stated Mr. Reidy agreed to accept the position after considerable pressure had been brought to bear.

1 DEAD, 20 INJURED IN N. Y. TENEMENT FIRE

New York, Nov. 28.—One man was burned to death and about twenty other persons were burned, four of them seriously, in a fire which swept through a five-story tenement on West 114th street today. The dead man, who was burned beyond recognition, was found on the top floor.

Ten families were forced to the street, many being assisted through the smoke filled hallways by firemen. The cause of the fire is unknown.

needs hard work from the ablest men up to the hour of death. "And men will work" hard for their children, keeping it long after they have got all they need and more. Say to them, "Your children cannot have it," and you kill their ambition. Foolish, perhaps, but it's so.

A COAL BLACK lion killer in Africa demands fifty fat, black wives as his reward. Most foolish, for he does not need so many. But let him have them. He won't kill lions, if you refuse.

Let inheritances be well taxed, as in England, that great accumulations may gradually melt. But don't kill incentive with any kind of taxation. Incentive to hard work is more important to the nation than any number of millions, no matter how foolishly spent.

SENATOR FERRIS says that young men and women have a much better chance in life if they start with little.

Quite true. Even a half-fool can succeed in spite of poverty. It takes a superior being to succeed in spite of wealth and in spite of the flattery that goes with wealth.

The late "Tin Plate King," Leeds, whose widow married Prince Christopher, and whose son married Princess Xenia, said to this writer, "I'd give a million dollars to anyone able to tell me how a rich man's son can escape being a fool."

MORE new high record prices in cotton yesterday, with December cotton going above 36. That's good for the country.

Learned financial writers are discussing "just what will be the effect on this country when Europe is finally pacified?"

Your great grandchildren won't be able to answer that question, nor their grandchildren.

When the nations become really pacified, emulation replacing selfish competition, no man demanding or wanting more than he really needs, material problems will solve themselves. But that's a long way off. And always the question remains:

What will be the color of the neck that inherit the earth—white, black or yellow?

You cannot have widespread peace or meekness until that color question is settled.

BASKET FUND ENDORSED BY DR. CONRAD

The Rev. A. Z. Conrad, pastor of Park Street Church, and one of the leading ministers of Boston, has heartily endorsed the Helping Hand Christmas Fund of the American.

In his letter to the Christmas Fund director, Dr. Conrad wrote:

"The Boston American Christmas Basket Fund renders a valuable service and is worthy of hearty support. To add to the Christmas joys of the poor is to create the Christmas spirit where it is needed. I commend your activity in this work."

HUNDREDS OF TICKETS.

Hundreds of tickets have been sold for the charity ball and concert in the main ballroom of the Copley-Plaza Hotel on Thursday evening, December 13, in aid of the Fund.

This big affair will be conducted under the joint auspices of Madame Lyman School for Stage Children, Back Bay; Mary V. Corbett School of Dancing, Somerville; Gertrude Dolan-DePetro Studio of Dancing, Roxbury, and Miss Helen M. Roche, South Boston. The hundreds of pupils of these popular teachers are working hard to make the ball a success.

Many celebrities are expected to attend the ball, including Governor Channing H. Cox, Mayor James M. Curley and family, and Major-General Clarence R. Edwards.

PUPILS TO ENTERTAIN.

Among the clever pupils of Miss Corbett who will have feature parts at the ball are Ruth Keough, Ruth Gallagher, Evelyn Dunn and Kay Corbett.

Among the talented artists on Miss Roche's portion of the program are John Flemming, Marion Dodigan, Marion Russell, Richard and Edward McCauley, the Hooper Tots (Chester and Doris), Ruth Williams, Marie C. Murphy, Jane Loota and Mrs. Helena DeYone. Assisting Miss Roche in making the ball a success are William E. O'Brien of the New England Telephone Co. and Thomas F. Brady.

BACK BAY DANCE.

The entertainment and dance to be conducted by Miss Louise J. Lyons of Roxbury and Florence McGuire-Herrick of Cambridge on December 5 will be given in the fine new studio of Madame Maybelle Lyman, at No. 327 Massachusetts avenue, Back Bay, instead of the place previously announced. Madame Lyman has generously donated the use of her studio for the party.

An entertainment and dance in behalf of the Fund will be given on Monday evening, December 10, in Huntington Chambers Hall, No. 30 Huntington avenue, by the pupils of Taylor's School of Stage Arts. The entertainment will be from 8 to 9:30 p. m. after which there will be dancing until 12 o'clock. Relatives of pupils in this school comprise the committee in charge of the party.

THEATRE BENEFIT.

A full house is expected next Monday night at the opening performance of the enchanting operetta, "The Lady in Ermine," at the Wilbur Theatre. Ten per cent. of the proceeds of the opening night's performance are to be given to the American's Christmas Fund, through the kindness of the Messrs. Shubert, who were highly pleased at the contribution of more than $400 to the Christmas Fund from the first two nights' performances of "Daw Drop Inn."

All reports indicate that "The Lady in Ermine" is one of the most charming light operas of the season. It has done a big business in New York, London, Paris and Vienna. The operetta contains twenty-two melodious, musical numbers, composed by Jean Gilbert and Alfred Goodman.

The book of "The Lady in Ermine" was written by Frederick Londsdale and Cyrus Wood, while the lyrics are by Harry Graham and Mr. Wood. The latter wrote some of the lyrics of "Mayfair." The entire production is staged under the personal direction of J. J. Shubert.

BUY TICKETS NOW.

Get busy folks and buy your tickets for this operetta without delay. Remember that every ten cents of every dollar you spend will go into the Basket Fund to buy substantial food for under-nourished children who will be without proper food on Christmas Day unless aided by some organization such as ours. Why not have a good time next Monday night and at the same time help a needy kiddy?

The free use of taxicabs for necessary work connected with the Fund has been given by the Town Taxi Company and the Armstrong Taxi Company.

The Fund now totals $3,507.36.

HERE IS THE WORLD'S GREATEST HEROINE!

FOR WHAT? FOR CATCHING MICE

The one on the left—that's the one—Miss Alma W. Heidt, who unaided and alone, captured six mice who had gnawed their way out of a box in City Hall Annex. The other girls in the office viewed Miss Heidt's courageous act from the tops of desks where they had jumped when the mice got loose. The one on the right is Miss Elizabeth O'Brien, one of the girls in the office who jumped. The picture was made after the battle was over.

The girls employed in the office of Prison Commissioner David J. Johnson at City Hall today propose Miss Alma W. Heidt, stenographer extraordinary, for the Congressional Medal of Honor, the Victoria Cross, the Croix de Guerre and any other tokens of heroism that are lying around loose. The citation to accompany the medals should read:

"When six ferocious mice gnawed their way out of a pasteboard box and threatened the lives and nervous systems of the feminine population of City Hall Annex, Miss Heit, with no thought of self, with dash and intrepidity and with a display of courage above and beyond the ordinary duties of the service, did at once restore the morale of her terror stricken comrades by seizing the mice by the tails and placing them again in captivity."

MICE ESCAPE!

The mice were about to be transported to Deer Island, not for any misdemeanor they had committed, but for experiental research by medical officers at the prison. Instead of a cracker tin or some other container that would be impervious to the rodents' sharp teeth, some stupid mere male put them in a pasteboard shoe box.

When the mice escaped into the room and slithered across the floor, under desks, into waste baskets or any other place where the hiding was good, shrieks filled the building. Miss Helen O'Neill, Miss Eva Holland, Miss Mary Murphy, Miss Elizabeth O'Brien and other young women in the big room mounted their desks with the celerity, if not with the grace, of trained acrobats.

Pale, but calm and with determination written on her features, Miss Heidt descended from the highest filing cabinet in the room. One after another of the man-eating mice she pursued to its lair, or wastebasket. Seizing them firmly by the tails she carried them to a safe place of confinement.

GIRL MAY PAY BACK LOAN TO AGED 'SUITOR'

Was Mary B. McDonald, youthful and pretty, the sweetheart of George J. Thrush, sedate and elderly?

In municipal court today Thrush, who is a novelty manufacturer, sued Mary, who lives at No. 53 Falmouth street, Back Bay, for $102. Said he lent it to her.

"Indeed he didn't," testified Mary, her big blue eyes aflame. "He gave it to me in installments. We were sweet hearts. I met him four years ago. He took me to the Copley-Plaza often and to the Masonic Club. Once we went to Nova Scotia together."

"Did he make you any other gifts?" she was asked.

"Yes, once he gave me an empty box. I went to his place to buy some for a friend—he manufactured them—and when the sale was made he turned to me and said, 'Here's one for you, dear—for nothing.'"

Thrush, who lives at the Technology Chambers, admitted having voyages to Nova Scotia with Mary adding "the party was a perfectly proper one."

"We were but casual friends," he said.

Judge Lourie ruled that Mary must repay Thrush $30, the first installment but that the remainder of the $102 was a gift.

RIOT IN BERLIN BY MOSCOW'S ORDER

Paris, Nov. 28 (I.N.S.)—Six German industrialists in the Ruhr have signed agreements with the Franco-Belgian occupational forces to increase production, the Foreign Office announced today. They include the Mannesmann, Thyssen and Hartner groups.

Berlin, Nov. 28 (I.N.S.)—Four policemen and one civilian were wounded here today in riots during a demonstration by German Communists.

It is understood the demonstration was ordered direct from Moscow.

Seventy ringleaders were arrested, including agitators reported sent here from Russia.

Germany is still without a cabinet. President Ebert made overtures to Adam Stegerwald, a member of the Centrist (Catholic) party, who if he accepts the chancellorship will attempt to form a bourgeois cabinet, including members of the German People's party and the Nationalists. Hugo Stinnes is one of the leaders of the German People's party.

Communists have been taking advantage of the tension and Moscow is becoming more and more active in German affairs. Russian agents have been sent into Germany to agitate and have been especially active in the Ruhr, where many persons were wounded in outbreaks during the past forty-eight hours.

Despite the outward appearance of solidarity, however, a split is developing between the German and Russian "Reds."

Herr Froehlich, one of the German communists, wrote to Karl Radek, representative of Moscow, protesting against the Russian order for German violence. The letter said in part:

"It is about time you Russians realized the difference between the German and Russian temperament. What is possible in Russia is by no means possible in Germany."

Zeigner Suffers Collapse in Cell

Dresden, Germany, Nov. 28 (I.N.S.)—Former Premier Zeigner, of Saxony, recently arrested for defying the Berlin government, suffered a nervous collapse in his cell today. He claims to be innocent of all the charges against him.

TURKEY SENT TO GOV. SMITH GOES TO ZOO

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 28.—The plaintive "Gobble, Gobble" of a white turkey shipped to the executive mansion from Farmingdale, N. Y., has led Gov. Smith to commute the bird's death sentence set for today, to life imprisonment. The turkey has joined the other more or less wild life in the Governor's private zoo.

"There are enough dead turkeys around here without this one," said Gov. Smith. "We're going to keep this fellow."

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

Really better than ready-made cough syrups, and saves about $5. Easily and quickly prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made syrup.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the throat tickle and heals the irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Ford Trucks Are Bought On Performance Records

If you were to ask a hundred—or a thousand—Ford truck owners why they use Ford trucks in preference to all others, they would likely say, "Because the Ford stands up."

They know that under the endless grind of daily service the Ford stays on the job month in and month out, with very little mechanical care, and with practically no expense for repairs or replacements. They buy to get performance.

A few might add that the Ford is the lowest priced truck on the market. But they would emphasize the work this truck does, not its initial cost, in accounting for the fact that there are more Ford Trucks in use today than all other makes combined.

DISCOVER TOMB DATING BACK TO TIME OF CHRIST

Philadelphia, Nov. 28.—An undisturbed tomb, dating from the time of Christ, has been discovered in the Valley of Kedron, near Jerusalem, according to word received here from Dr. W. F. Albright, director of the American School of Oriental Research in Jerusalem, it was announced today by Dr. James Alan Montgomery, president of the school.

"The tomb contained more than a score of ossuaries," Dr. Albright wrote. "A dozen of these bore the names and genealogies of the occupants. All the dead apparently belonged to one family which flourished about the time of Christ.

"Its slowly increasing number of such inscription groups is already beginning to provide me with valuable material for the nomenclature and eventually for the history of the New Testament period."

Dr. Albright also reported the finding of a sarcophagus, said to be the finest yet unearthed in Palestine. It was found at Tell Barak, northeast of Caesarea.

"The most reliable date proposed is the second century after Christ," the letter said. "The beautiful sarcophagus is distinctly pre-classical and cannot be compared with the Alexander sarcophagus, despite its undoubted excellence in workmanship.

"The front side represents a combat between Greeks and Amazons; the other side is much more carelessly executed and represents a conventional pair of griffins common in Italian art of this period."

MUNITIONS BLAST WRECKS TOWN

Copenhagen, Nov. 28.—According to a message from Helsingfors, an explosion in the Red Army's principal munition depot in Zhitomir, Ukraine, caused a serious fire that destroyed the greater part of the town's jewish quarter. Twenty persons were injured. The number of dead in unknown.

Mrs. Baylies Opens Home for Christmas Sale, Says Betty Alden

MRS. THOMAS E. P. RICE

Mrs. Rice (Elizabeth Lyman) is of the attractive group posing for the tableaux to be held at Jordan Hall this evening.

WHAT to give dad or brother or someone else. The problem which has caused considerable agitation and which has already been solved for you.

For the clever group of matrons running the Christmas sale to be held a week from today in aid of the Infants' Hospital have filled socks full of small gifts for members of the sterner sex. The puzzled lady has but to purchase.

Mrs. Walter C. Baylies is opening the magnificent ballroom of her home at No. 5 Commonwealth avenue for the affair, which is primarily an event for the kiddies.

Toys in general and dolls in particular will feature the sale. Merry old Santa himself, I believe, is to drop down the chimney for a minute, and the huge, brightly decorated Christmas tree will carry a heavy burden of generously filled stockings of all shapes and sizes. There will be tables where gifts suitable for folks of all ages will be sold.

Mrs. Putnam

Mrs. Stoughton Bell heads the committee in charge, with Mesdames George Putnam, John T. Wheelwright, Richard Olney and Arthur Blake assisting her.

MR. AND MRS. ANTHONY L. STURGIS of Boston have been stopping for a few days in New York at the Belleclaire.

AMONG the youthful matrons who are to pose in the tableaux being given this afternoon and evening at Jordan Hall is pretty, brown-haired Mrs. Tom Rice.

As Elizabeth Lyman, daughter of the Charles F. Lymans, she was one of the daintiest brides of two Summers ago, when she became the wife of Tom Rice, one of the best players on the Myopia Hunt Club team. Since their marriage the Rices have been making their home at Hamilton, where they are members of the year-round colony.

Miss Ella deT. Snelling, daughter of the Rodman Paul Snellings of Commonwealth ave and Beverly Farms, is another of the attractive coterie taking part in the living pictures depicting the works of old masters.

Mrs. Hendricks H. Whitman will read the legends of the pictures, while Mrs. Frederick Josephine deGersdorff of New York, will sing some appropriate songs. There will be an afternoon performance, in which most of the parts will be taken by children, the tableaux to represent scenes from Stevenson's "A Child's Garden of Verses." The two performances are to benefit the James Marsh Jackson League.

Ella Snelling Bradlee, Jr.,

THE Rodman Snellings, by the way are at No. 35 Commonwealth avenue. For several seasons they had the Arthur Little residence at No. 151 Commonwealth avenue.

WING IN COURT IN WILLETT'S BIG SUIT

Daniel G. Wing, president of the First National Bank and leading financial figure in Boston, appeared at the Dedham Courthouse today in response to a summons issued to enforce his appearance in the $56,000,000 Willett, Sears & Co. lawsuit, in which Wing is a defendant.

Attorney Sherman Whipple asked Wing's attorney to have him present two days ago, and when the banker failed to appear a summons was issued at the behest of Mr. Whipple.

Clifton H. Dwinnell, first vice-president of the same bank, also appeared at the trial in response to a summons.

Robert C. Morse of the banking and brokerage firm of Jackson & Curtis, who testified yesterday that his firm bought United Printing Company bonds for fifteen cents on the dollar, and Norwood Housing Association bonds for five cents on the dollar, after a talk with Robert F. Herrick, resumed the stand today. He testified that the purchase was entered on the books in the name of the "Salvage Syndicate." The profits on the syndicate's account, he said, was $14,750.29.

Daniel G. Wing.

DOWN TO "CENTS."

"That is the first time that 'cents' have been mentioned at this trial," said Judge Callahan, laconically.

Morse said that on January 7, 1919, the sum of $40,000 was entered on his firm's books to the credit of the Manufacturers' Company, a Herrick concern. He admitted having a talk with Herrick about this deposit.

Q.—Did he tell you why he sent the $40,000? A.—I think he said that it was to insure that he would not be out of pocket in the matter of the notes of the Willett companies.

Q.—Did he say why he made the deposit in the name of the Manufacturers' Company and not his own? A.—No.

Q.—You knew that the entries in your books concealed the fact that payment for the notes had been made by Jackson & Co. at Herrick's request, and that the $40,000 deposit had been made by Herrick himself? A.—Concealed from whom?

HIS OWN IDEA.

Q.—Anyone who might look in your books? A.—Yes, except my partners.

Q.—Was there any suggestion that the transactions be thus entered? A.—No.

Q.—It was your own idea? A.—The 'Salvage Syndicate' entry was my idea.

Q.—Whose check came over? A.—There is no question in my mind but that it was the Manufacturers' Company check.

Morse testified that he had been president of the Roxbury Carpet Company, one of the former Willett companies, since May 16, 1919.

Alfred B. White of the law firm of White & Barnes, testified that Herrick had called him on the telephone and asked him to attend a conference at Herrick's office, saying that he had some business for White. At the conference he met William Sweitt, Edward H. Rathbun and a Mr. Halbur. They were note holders in Willett companies.

ENTERED SUIT.

As a result of the conference he entered suit against Willett, Sears & Co., and against George D. Willett personally. For convenience he named George D. Baker, a lawyer in the office of White & Barnes, as plaintiff. Baker went to the sheriff's office to deliver attachment papers on the Willett-Sears properties and to inform the sheriff where the properties were located.

Asked if Herick told him about these properties which he was to attach, the witness replied that he talked with Herrick, but did not think Herrick gave him this information. He said that he asked Herrick if there were any prefered creditors of Willett, Sears & Company, and Herrick said no. He was seeking for grounds to petition Willett, oSars & Company into bankruptcy.

FLOUR DEALERS LAUNCH "EAT TOAST" MOVE

"Eat more toast" will be the message broadcasted to greater Boston as a result of a meeting of representatives of a dozen organizations today at the City Club when Grosvenor Dawe of the Union Bakers Association outlined the beneficial effect on the health of the community by a larger consumption of wheat products.

The movement is part of a campaign in progress throughout the country to stimulate more general use of flour products. Mr. Dawe explained that already excellent results have been accomplished in such cities as St. Louis, Chicago, and Kansas City.

Linked up with the flour merchants, bakers and others directly interested in the production or sale of wheat flour are manufacturers of gas and electrical appliances, hardware merchants, hotel and restaurant keepers and may others.

After a general discussion on the merits of the plan a committee to develop plans for a "eat more toast" campaign in this city was organized. Alton H. Hathaway, representing the bakery interests, was elected chairman and the other members comprised Paul Kelleher of the Retail Bakers Association; Corwin Wickersham of the Fleishman Yeast Company; J. C. D. Clark, sales manager of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company; L. W. Thompson, president of the Hardware Merchants Association; L. A. Fiorani, representing the electric lighting and equipment industry in New England and H. S. Leviston as the representative of the flour merchants.

Following a general organization meeting, representatives of all lines of business allied in any way with the use of flour and flour products will be asked to co-operate in launching the campaign.

PARDONED FOR DEATHBED FAREWELL

Released from the Deer Island House of Correction, as a Thanksgiving gift from Commissioner David J. Johnson and Judge Charles S. Sullivan, a prisoner reached his home just in time to clasp his dying wife in his arms.

It was known at the institution that the prisoner's wife had not long to live. The fifty-five prisoners who were to be released or paroled were not to be released for another day. Exception was made in this one case.

Dr. David J. Johnson

Rushing into his home, the released prisoner took his wife in his arms. The woman opened her eyes and smiled. Tears rolled down the man's cheeks. In a moment it was all over.

Lord Leverhulme Will Sell Island He Could Not Give to Natives

London, Nov. 28.—Inasmuch as the inhabitants of the Isle of Lewis off the Northwest Coast of Scotland have refused to accept the island as a gift from the owner, Lord Leverhulme the soap magnate has offered most of the property for sale.

The estate put on the market embrace some 282,000 acres, including the Grimersta River, where the salmon fishing is so good that preservation is unnecessary. There are numerous bays and sea lochs, peaks that rise nearly 1,790 feet above sea level, and plenty of stags, grouse and sundry fowl to tempt the huntsman.

Lord Leverhulme

When he bought the island, Lord Leverhulme, who was in Boston the other day, expected to organize fisheries and other industries under the control of a commercial company. But the project went to pieces, chiefly because the islanders stubbornly objected to becoming employes, preferring to paddle their own fishing boats, even if it meant a smaller income.

Then when the owner offered to give them the property, the islanders figured it would cost more to run the place with its several estates and huge castle than to remain mere residents, and the gift was declined.

FRENCH TAPESTRY FOR U. S. PERPETUATES DEEDS OF WAR

Paris, Nov. 28.—The large tapestry entitled "Departure of American Troops from Philadelphia" which the French Government is to present to the United States, is nearing completion in the government tapestry works at Beauvais.

Six selected weavers have been three years making the piece. It will be exhibited at the International Exposition of Decorative Arts in Paris and then sent to America. A copy will be kept in this city in the "war salon" for which other works of art, including a number of Gobelin tapestries, are now being made.

The tapestry destined for the United States, is thirty-eight square metres in area and represents artillerymen marching. In the foreground is a mounted color-bearer carrying a big American flag. In the wide border, the deeds of Lafayette and Pershing are linked together with the dates of 1776 and 1917.

POLICE SEEK SHACKLED MAN HIDDEN 10 DAYS IN TUNNEL

San Francisco, Nov. 28.—Authorities of Jackson, Cal., are searching for an old mining tunnel in which Philip Olesen, known as "Honora Red," is believed to have lain for ten days, handcuffed and bound.

James Kennard, a prisoner in county jail at San Andreas, has confessed to having handcuffed Olesen ten days ago and left him in the tunnel because Olesen owed him money.

Kennard made a fruitless attempt to locate the tunnel before his arrest on a bad check charge. He said he placed Olesen in the tunnel at night and now can't recall the exact place.

The prisoner attempted to commit suicide after his arrest when he realized he would be unable to release Olesen as he had planned.

$2,000,000 LINER FOR N. Y.-NEW ORLEANS

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 28.—A contract for a modern passenger steamer to cost $2,000,000 has been let to the Todd Drydock & Construction Company of Tacoma by the Southern Pacific Co. The steamer will have a displacement of 11,100 tons, will accommodate 227 first class, and 111 steerage passengers and will be used on the New York-New Orleans run.

BISHOP REFUSES CHRISTIAN BURIAL TO HUNGER STRIKER

London, Nov. 28.—Bishop Cohalan of Cork has refused Christian burial for Commandant Dennis Barry, who died from the effects of a hunger strike at Newbridge.

Explaining the reasons, Bishop Cohalan says he regrets very much being obliged to take this course, but declares that if it was his own brother he would deal with the case in the same way.

"Republicanism in Ireland," the Bishop says, "has for the last twelve months been a wicked and insidious attack on the church and the souls of the faithful committed to the church's care.

"By church law any one who deliberately takes his own life is deprived of Christian burial. I shall interpret the law of the church and refuse Christian burial. I feel bound to do it."

SOUTHERN PRIZE BEAUTIES PROVE HISTORY IS WRONG

New York, Nov. 28 (I.N.S.)—History is all wrong. Blonde beauty predominates south of the Mason and Dixon line—Civil War novels, Suanwanee River songs and Broadway success regardless.

New York learned this for the first time today. Eighty-eight prize beauties, competing in a national beauty contest, furnished the proof. Thirteen of the entrants were from Southern cities. Twenty-nine of them are blondes.

SPAIN PREPARES FOR WAR, ASSERTS GENERAL RIVERA

Rome, Nov. 28.—General Primo Rivera, president of the Spanish Military Directorate, is quoted by the newspaper Mattino of Naples as follows:

"My government will turn its attention to production of war material as soon as possible; also to reorganization of private industry to transfer it into war industry.

"We plan to organize a powerful military aviation force and we have made an agreement with the Italian government to this effect.

"We need many Italian finished products and Italy needs raw materials. We could supply her chiefly with coal and iron, which she lacks. I think the best combination for both countries would be for Italian vessels to arrive at Spanish ports laden with Italian goods and return laden with Spanish goods. These material links usually cement the soldiest friendships."

RISKS HANGING TO SEE HER CHILD

Countess Is Loser at 'Love and Fishes'

Cries of Derision, Then Watchman Shoots Boy

DIAGRAM OF SHOOTING

Above is shown the scene of the factory ground at No. 22 Vale street, Roxbury, where children were playing when the watchman, Abraham White, after ordering them off the place, fired his revolver. A bullet struck one of the children, William Burke, in the leg. Pictures below diagram are of White, the watchman, and Burke who was shot.

"Old Man, White! Old Man White!"

For years this cry has rung along Vale street, Roxbury. It was the cry of derision of the "factory yard gang," the "Vale street kids," as they were variously known, for Abraham White, the aged watchman of the factory.

For twenty-six years, White has been watchman on the property, formerly owned by the Dennison Manufacturing Company, now by the Louis Buff Manufacturing Company, at No. 22 Vale street.

His steps has grown slower. His form has grown more bent, but he has been faithful to his trust.

Again the boys trespassed on the factory property, it is alleged.

The old man warned them. They refused to leave, he says.

"Old Man White" had a revolver, as watchman. In it were one blank cartridge and one loaded one, he says.

"Old Man White" fired at the boys, intending, he says, to use a blank cartridge.

The good one came under the hammer.

William Burke, twelve, was rushed to City Hospital, where a bullet was removed from his right leg and he was held for further treatment.

Then the police went to the cottage at No. 9 Vale street and arrested "Old Man White." He was in Roxbury court today on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

White was arraigned in Roxbury Court on a charge of assault with a revolver. He pleaded not guilty and Judge Palmer continued the case to next Tuesday.

White told the police he had no permit to carry the revolver.

"It would never have happened even with the boys trespassing but for a woman who hollered at me from a window, complaining about the noise the boys were making in the factory yard," the aged watchman told an American reporter.

"I warned them. They laughed and wouldn't go. Then I fired but I thought I was firing a bank. There were two cartridges in the revolver and one of them was blank. The wrong one came up."

Seven boys and a girl were in the yard, according to their story of the occurrence. They were playing about and shouting. Then Young Burke and a lad named George Octavius started wrestling for the "championship" of the factory yard.

They say White approached and ordered them away and they started running towards the open gate of wood, bars and swung wide.

Then White fired, they say, young Burke continuing to run after being hit, until his leg crumbled under him.

White is on $500 bail.

'WOLF GIRL' SURRENDERS IN MURDER

Mother-Love Brings Back Fugitive Accused With Husband in Fatal Robbery

Chicago, Nov. 28 (I.N.S.).—Mrs. Catherine Malm, nineteen, sought as an accomplice in the murder of Edward Lehman, today will be booked on a charge of murder.

Mother-love for her two-year-old daughter proved more powerful than fear of hanging and drove her to surrender after she had eluded police seeking her since her husband's confession.

The "wolf girl" was calm when she walked into a police station and told who she was. She had come from Indianapolis in hope of seeing her baby, who has been closely watched since search for the girl started.

RISKS ALL FOR BABY.

Otto Malm, her husband, lifted the weight of murder charges from Walter Bockelmand and "Blonde Kitty" Beck when he admitted that he and his wife were the pair who shot down Edward Lehman, watchman, when they were surprised while robbing the Delson Knitting Company's plant Nov. 4.

The prospect of hanging for Bockelmann and the Beck girl for a murder they had not committed had not perturbed the "Wolf Girl" apparently.

But "I knew that there wasn't a chance to see baby unless I came back," she told officers to whom she made a frank confession of her part in the Lehman killing.

"That's why I'm here," she explained. "I'm a mother."

GAVE POLICE THE SLIP

"I was at our flat the night the cops came to get me, but I slipped the kid sister a fiver to buy things for the baby and went down the back stairs while the cops came up the front."

An attempt to get in touch with the baby by letter led to a trap set for her in Indianapolis. She wrote a man in Chicago for news of her daughter, asking him to reply with a letter to "Miss Katy Williams."

The decoy letter sent to general delivery by police, who intercepted the first message, was called for by Jimmy Connelly, a friend of the "Wolf Girl." She watched from the steps of the Indianapolis post office while Connelly was arrested.

8,000 Pounds of Mah Jong, Chinese Game, Arrive on Liner

New York, Nov. 28.—Eight thousand pounds of Mah Jong arrived today from China, by way of San Francisco.

The four tons of the plain and fancy boxes containing the symbolical winds, seasons and other appurtenances of the game, made up a part of the cargo of the steamship Kroonland, which also brought 320 bales of California hops for Belgian brewerles.

The Kroonland's varied cargo included 48,000 California squabs for the Eastern holiday market, broilers, eggs, tinned goods and dried fruits.

OPEN DRIVE ON BAY STATE QUACKS

The State Police today started a drive against quack doctors in Massachusetts. The action followed the return to Boston of Dr. Charles E. Prior, head of the Massachusetts Board of Registration in Medicine, who had been in conference with the Connecticut authorities at Hartford.

Two Boston practitioners and a chiropractor in Wakefield are the first to be investigated. State Detective Keating has been assigned to the case. Others are to be probed.

Dr. Prior declined to reveal the names of any of the suspected quacks here. He said Miss A. M. Longely, secretary of the Massachusetts Board of Registration, had remained in Hartford for the purpose of checking up the photographs of certain practitioners under suspicion.

Dr. Prior said he thought Representative Twomey's bill to curt quacks in this State would be fought by the friends of Boston College physicians and surgeons. He added that the Massachusetts Board of Registration would continue to accept the Committee on Education of Medicine Society as to grading of medical schools.

'JOY-RIDER' GETS TERM IN JAIL

Thomas Nee of No. 22 Silver street, South Boston, was sentenced to three months in jail and fined $50 in the South Boston Court today by Judge Day for misappropriating the automobile of Lawrence B. Parker of Dorchester on B street November 19, driving it in a reckless manner and refusing to stop when ordered by an officer.

Miles McDonough of Vine street, Dorchester, and Thomas Mahan of Fourth street, South Boston, were released on charges of misappropriating the automobile when they testified that they were invited to ride by Nee and did not know the car was stolen.

Mahan was shot in the neck by Patrolman William E. McTighe, who pursued the stolen car in a wild two and a half mile chase through South Boston and Dorchester streets the day it was stolen.

SHEIK PAT IN SECOND DIVORCE

Another Decree Follows Raid; This Time Mrs. Wallace Is Central Figure

Edward F. Wallace of Brighton was granted a divorce in the Suffolk County Probate Court today from Florence Betters Wallace on the grounds of unfaithfulness. James W. Patterson, Boston auto salesman, was named. The case was uncontested.

This is the second divorce that has resulted from a police raid on the apartment of Mrs. Wallace at No. 164 Strathmore road, Brighton, last July.

The police surprised Mrs. Wallace and Patterson, better known as "Pat the Sheik," when they invaded the apartment. Last month Mrs. Patterson was granted a divorce from Pat in the Suffolk County Superior Court on grounds of unfaithfulness. She named Mrs. Wallace.

Mrs. Wallace

Mrs. Wallace at the time of the raid talked freely to the newspapers of her "affair" with Pat, and said she proposed to marry him as soon as the necessary divorces were secured by Mrs. Patterson and Mr. Wallace.

GEORGE HARVEY GOES TO PEACHAM AT LAST

Washington, Nov. 28.—George Harvey, American Ambassador to Great Britain, who has been a guest at the White House for the last week, left Washington today for Peacham, Vt., to spend Thanksgiving with the folks of his native town.

The trip will bring realization of the hope he expressed several months ago in London, when he said he wanted to clean up the slate of matters before the embassy so as to eat Thanksgiving dinner in Peacham.

LIQUOR SQUAD HEAD, ILL, GETS LEAVE

Captain Charles Reardon, in command of the Boston liquor and narcotic squad, has been granted a month's leave of absence on grounds of illness. He will go away to recuperate for that time. It is reported that with the expiration of this time he may ask for an out-of-town assignment. For two years he has held his present job, has worked hard and the strain has told in failing health.

GETS JAIL TERM FOR CONCEALING ASSETS

Joseph E. Baron, Worcester furniture dealer, convicted in United States Court of making a false oath and aiding and abetting in concealment of assets in connection with bankruptcy proceedings, was sentenced today by Judge Morton to 18 months in Plymouth County Jail.

'SPIRITIST' WOOED GIRL

MRS. SPARTA AND DAUGHTERS

ROLLED EYES, TOLD SPIRITS TO MOVE ON

"Doctor" Joseph Vasello, whose professional cards read: "World's Greatest Clairvoyant, was a barber in Washington before he came to Quincy to practice his "spirit healing."

Vasello is sought by police for giving James Cirigiano of East Weymouth a bad check in exchange for $190 cash.

Among the methods of cure he practiced on Mrs. Consetta Sparta of East Weymouth, who is seriously ill, were the sprinkling of "holy water" on the floors of Mrs. Sparta's house and burning of sweet grass in the kitchen range.

Sitting in front of his patient, Vasello, Mrs. Sparta says, would roll his eyes, twitch his ears, and command the bad spirit to come out of her.

Mrs. Sparta describes her pain as the feeling that some great, strong man is squeezing her whole left side, and she faithfully believes Vasello that a bad spirit had her in its grip. She never lost faith in him until he disappeared.

Vasello also tried to make love to young Theresa Sparta, and gave up temporarily his plans for a Brockton office when she and another Italian girl refused to go there to work for him, according to the Sparta family.

St. Blazien, Baden—Mme. Olga Verovsky, widow of the Russian Soviet envoy, who was assassinated during the second Lausanne conference, died here today.

HELD UP, BEAT, ROBBED, ON W. BOSTON BRIDGE

William Finneran, No. 12 West Water street, Wakefield, held up and robbed of $60 on the West Boston Street Bridge, is believed to be the latest victim of the same gang which has terrorized Cambridge.

Finneran came to Cambridge police headquarters early today from the Cambridge City Hospital with seven stitches in his lip, a bruised head and an empty purse.

He says three men approached him near the Boston line on the bridge and one of them asked for a match.

As he reached for it one of them hit him in the back of the head with something hard. The third one then hit him on the jaw, and he fell unconscious.

When he came to he was picked up by Joseph Frank Riley, who took him to the hospital.

Police believe this another act of the gang responsible for the murder early Saturday morning of John C. Galvin, whose body was found on Hunting street.

THREE CAMBRIDGE CHILDREN MISSING

This time three of a kind only had to beat one pair.

The three sons of Mr. and Mrs. John McVey, No. 1054 Cambridge street, Cambridge, have all run away, the father reported to Cambridge police today. The "triplet runaways" have the pair of parents guessing—and worried.

They are, Russell, eight; Gilman, twelve, and William, thirteen.

ROMANCE AND CASH VANISH

Kin of Czar Seeks to Recover $1,900 She Lost in Affair With Attorney

New York, Nov. 28.—The love potion administered Marie Anne, Countess de Tiesenhausen, thirty-six, member of the Romanoff family and a distant relative of the late Czar, which caused her to withdraw $1,900 from a savings bank and invest it in a fishery on the coast of Maine, was the subject of close scrutiny by the jury in her suit to recover from Edward D. Bolton, her former attorney, a loss she says she suffered.

The ingredients of the potion, asserts the Countess, were romance, fish and greenbacks, and that when she awoke from her day-dream of culling a fortune from the deep, all three had gone a-glimmering.

SHE WAS ONLY FISH.

All that was left were a bunch of letters and postcards from Bolton, some worthless stock certificates and one fish, which the lady candidly asserts was none other than herself.

The jury gazed upon the winsome black-haired Countess, inspected the sheaf of embossed paper she treasured $1,900 for, and had read to them the missives from the lawyer. There was nothing in the letters to indicate a love affair between Bolton and his client. The notes began "Dear Friend," and ended "Yours truly."

The Countess declares, nevertheless, that Bolton, who had since become a stock broker at No. 342 Madison avenue, had deceived her and taken advantage of his knowledge of her affairs by advising her to invest in the East Coast Fisheries, which became bankrupt.

DENIES ANY DECEIT.

Bolton asserted, that he personally lost $10,000 in the concern and denied he had ever been the intimate adviser of the Countess, having given her advice on only one occasion. General George W. Goethals of Panama Canal fame was for five months president of the fisheries corporation, declared Bolton, and the enterprise, under another name, is now a solvent concern.

NEW TRIAL TEST FOR CRUISER RICHMOND

Rockland, Me., Nov. 28.—The scout cruiser Richmond, which established a speed record of 34.62 knots under trial displacement of 7,200 tons last June, today went on the Rockland course with a view to obtaining data under an increased displacement of 8,700 tons. The speed under the latter condition was estimated as slightly in excess of 31 knots.

With this trial completed, the Richmond again will be put through her standardization paces tomorrow at an intermediate displacement of 8,300 tons. She has had a shaking down cruise of 19,000 miles since leaving Rockland.

HELD FOR ROBBING FAINTING WOMAN

Lawrence, Nov. 28.—Charged with the larceny of $70 from the pocketbook of Miss Margaret Collins as she lay on the sidewalk in a faint, Frank Bonfiglio, eighteen years old of Newbury street, was to appear in district court here today before Judge J. J. Mahoney. Miss Collins was returning from her dentist's office when the fainting spell came upon her. She was taken to the hospital and on her discharge was given her pocketbook empty.

Allow Name on Ballot

The Somerville Board of Registrars of Voters has turned down the petition of seven residents of Ward 6, who protested against the name of L. Ormond Jackson on the ballot for Republican Alderman at the December 13 election. Claim was made that no such name appeared on the voting list. The box is held that it referred to Isaac O. Jackson of the same address.

MANTELL'S SON DIVORCED IN LOVE TANGLE

White Plains, N. Y., Nov. 28.—Supreme Court Justice Morschauser today granted a divorce to Mrs. Helen E. Mantell of New York from her husband, Jack F. Mantel, an opera singer, who told the court he was a son of Robert B. Mantell, the Shakespearian actor.

Mantell said he wished to withdraw his defense of last week, when he said he had learned that his wife had remarried and had become the mother of two children by a second husband. He said he found this to be untrue.

Mrs. Mantell charged on the witness stand that Mantell brought a young French girl to this country and was living with her at a New York hotel.

C. W. Marshall, manager of the hotel, testified that Mantell was living at his hostelry with a woman other than the plaintiff.

Mantell told the court he had made a financial settlement with his wife. No alimony was granted Mrs. Mantell.

ALL DENOMINATIONS TO OFFER THANKS

Mayor Curley has accepted an invitation to attend the Thanksgiving gathering, at Symphony Hall tomorrow, at 10:30. The meeting, for the purpose of offering thanks for the blessings Boston has received, will be in charge of Rev. Earl E. Harper. Bishop Charles Slattery will deliver a sermon and Henry Gideon, director of the orchestra at Temple Israel, will play the organ. Persons of all denominations are invited to attend.

RADIO AMERICAN

HUB INVENTOR TELLS SECRET OF SUPER SET

By M. A. SIMMONS,
Inventor of Super.
Copyright, 1923

Two stages of radio-frequency are not practical with the supereutrodyne, because the magnetic field set up by three sets of coils cannot be overcome except by a long separation between them.

Of course with the two stages of radio-frequency amplication in the old neutrodyne, somewhat stronger signals can be obtained, but I believe at a sacrifice in quality and ease of operation.

Quality is obtained by proper operation and the use of properly designed pieces of apparatus. This does not mean that cheap material is not good. Cheap material may be used if you know enough about radio design to pick out cheap material of good quality from cheap material of poor grade.

It is a good rule to follow that the highest grade of material is necessarily higher in price. Also the better the material used, the better the results obtained. The amount of energy in a radio set is very small at the best, and it will pay you to keep the loss of current as small as possible.

Losses can occur in many ways, such as poor insulation (fibre, mud composition, paper and cloth), poor design (apparatus where little care is given to correct design), poor wiring (long leads, improper contact between wires, haphazard wiring, wires to close together causing parasitic feedback). Certain wires may, however, be bunched together with good results.

The use of too much soldering flux will cause considerable trouble, such as making the set noisy due to battery action between various metals. When using No-Korode paste, a very tiny amount is all that is necessary, and every bit surplus should be wiped off. Don't let any paste flow between contacts, particularly between jack points. Alcohol with a little rosin in it, makes a good safe flux. A little is sufficient.

All England Heard U. S. Broadcast

London, Nov. 28.—Outstanding proof of the great success of the first night's broadcasting from America for British listeners-in is the fact that until late in the afternoon the telephone exchange at Ealing, a London suburb, was snowed under by local and long distance calls from those trying to report the perfect receipt of every word from WGY.

Captain Eckersley, chief engineer of the broadcasting company, said: "Apparently the whole United Kingdom got every word from WGY and the country-wide reports now being classified indicate that WHAZ was received partially. A man at Maidstone telephoned he got WOR twice.

A listener at Lawes telephone that he heard every word of Henry Ford's speech."

The Listener-In

Music played on the organ seems to broadcast better, perhaps, than any other instrument or combination of instruments. Unusually fine concerts of this type come in regularly from stations WEAF, WCAP and WJAZ broadcast simultaneously, and from WIP and WTAM.

Listening in for England the other night, while not entirely successful, produced some satisfaction to DX hounds. One fan reports bringing in seven distant stations he never heard before, while "fishing" for the British broadcasters.

Station WGR, Buffalo, comes in much better now since its wave length change and power increased. This station broadcasts unusually fine programs.

What did KFIZ, Fond du Lac, Wisconsin, do the other night? This station, that has rarely been heard heretofore, pounded in to beat the band. Maybe they are trying to reach across the Atlantic.

RADIO QUERIES

COST OF SUPER.

Radio Editor:

About how much will it cost to build the supereutrodyne set? Can one be purchased made up and where?

J. F. L.

Parts for the neutrodyne, using the best quality, would cost a little more than fifty dollars. You will have to get someone to make it for you, if you are unable to build one yourself.

R. F. COUPLERS.

Radio Editor:

Please tell me how to make the supereutrodyne set described in the American. In referring to the radio-frequency couplers, are they variometers, variometer transformers, or extra couplers? Can dry cell tubes be used in place of the 200 or the 201A tubes?

M. E. K.

The radio-frequency couplers were described in detail in the American. They are variometers. The supereutrodyne described in the American is designed for 201A or 200 in the detector. It will have the radio-frequency for dry cell tubes, and as soon as certain experiments are completed, a set for cell tubes will be described.

$40,000,000 POLISH TIMBER FOR U. S. MEN

London, Nov. 28.—A project is under way for concession of timber rights in the Polish forest of Bialowieska, one of the largest in Europe, to a consortium of American financiers, according to the Polish Press Bureau here. The Americans are said to have offered the Polish government $40,000,000 for the concession. The forest covers 470 square miles between the Nieman, Bug and Pripet rivers.

HAVE KIDNEYS EXAMINED BY YOUR DOCTOR

Take Jad Salts to Wash Kidneys if Back Pains or Bothers You

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.

To help neutralize irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

Savon Cadum, The Great French Complexion Soap

Grande dame or midinette —though beauty ride or walk, French women have the art of keeping it. Their sense of what is elegante is always delicate and true—have they not chosen Savon Cadum?

And now, direct from the laboratories of Paris, it comes prepared for the use of la belle Americaine.

No less fastidious than her French sisters, she too is learning the many beauty gifts of this exquisite toilet soap.

Everywhere she is telling other women about it.

At all good shops 25c.

WIFE NO. 1 PAYS MATE $25 TO GET RID OF HIM

"I'm sorry for the other woman, but I paid him $25 to get rid of him and I hope I never see him again."

Seated in the kitchen of a two-room tenement in Dodge street, Maplewood, Mrs. Laura Ellis Pike, Wife No. 1 of Joseph Pike, Yankee veteran of the Civil War, expressed the above sentiment to the American.

The other woman is Anna May Hodgson of No. 17 Preston street, Maplewood, who was married to Pike in the home of her parents a short time ago.

Pike, the father of two children, appeared in Malden Court and was held in $5,000 for the Grand Jury. On arraignment he declared he could not remember the second marriage.

"It was one of those war-time romances," said Mrs. Pike. "I met him just before he went overseas as a member of Battery D, 101st Field Artillery. When he came back we were married and I have led a terrible existence ever since.

"My husband was gassed during the war, and he blames that for all his troubles. All I know is that he abused me constantly and contributed very little to the support of myself and the children.

"At last I asked him if he was married and he said he was and that he couldn't get it off his mind. Finally I told him that if he would tell me the name of the girl and go away from me, I would give him $25. He agreed, and we went to the bank where I had a little money. I drew out $25 and gave it to him and he told me the girl's name was Anna Thompson.

That was not the right name, but after a brief investigation I found the girl he had married. Later her father and mine went to the police station and Pike was arrested.

Mrs. Pike No. 2 lives within a few miles of No. 1, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hodgson.

"My daughter met this man last Summer," said Mrs. Hodgson, "while she was employed in a store. He went under the name of Harry Winters, and seemed to be a nice young fellow. He called here frequently, and eventually came here to board. He told us he came from California, where his people were, and said his prospects were good.

About three months after they had become acquainted my daughter and Winters decided to get married. The ceremony was performed here in the house by Frank E. Peterson, a justice of the peace. My husband and I were witnesses.

WIFE SEEKS TO ENJOIN "RIVAL"

Mrs. Cecelia Norton of East Boston has filed a bill in equity in the Superior Court asking that Bertha Morse of Canton be permanently enjoined "from any act calculated or intended to alienate the affections" of her husband, Robert.

Mrs. Norton charges Mrs. Morse with not only writing and telephoning Mr. Norton, but with harboring him in her house. She says that because of the relationship between her husband and Mrs. Morse that she has suffered many hardships and privations. The case will be heard before Judge Morton December 5.

KILLED AS PIANO FALLS ON HIM

Lawrence, Nov. 28.—Alfred La-France, a piano mover employed by James A. Hyde, was instantly killed today when he was thrown from an automobile truck and a piano fell on him. Hyde was driving the truck.

It skidded at the corner of Park and Berkeley streets, hurling La-France to the street.

UNCLE ROBERT WELCOMED BY MAYOR

Mayor Curley today paused in the rush of city affairs to receive Uncle Robert, mysterious philanthropist of the United States-at-large.

Uncle Robert wanted to tell the Mayor of general plans he has for Boston next Spring. The kiddies and others who like sympathy and a good time will look forward to the Summer of 1924. Then they can look back at it.

Mayor Curley was enthusiastic about Uncle Robert and his big hearted work. The Hub's chief executive assured Uncle Robert of all the co-operation needed.

Many cities have known Uncle Robert, but this is his first trip to Boston for the purpose of planning year-round Santa Clausing.

Plans for the good times of next Summer, at which Uncle Robert will play fairy godfather, will be announced later in the Winter.

Two big parties were held in Lowell by this mystery man of big-brother deeds. Mayor John J. Donovan of Lowell took active part in both. One was for the tiny tots at the Ayer Home and the other at the Chelmsford Street Hospital. Both will last long in the memories of those in the two institutions.

Before leaving Boston for New York to spend Shanksgiving with some of his kiddie friends there, Uncle Robert again visited Governor Cox at the State House and the two were photographed.

500 AT KU KLUX RALLY IN HOLDEN

Worcester, Nov. 28.—Ku Klux Klan activities were renewed in the Worcester district with a mass meeting of the klansmen and their sympathizers in the Holden town hall, at which 500 were present. The meeting was addressed by Rev. O. A. Henry, pastor of Christ Church, Methodist, South Akron, O.

For two hours the Klan speaker exhorted along lines advocated by F. Eugene Farnsworth, King Kleagle.

Half the audience was composed of men from outside Holden. Fifty cars were parked near the hall. Clinton, Leominster and Fitchburg were represented.

Admission was by tickets only. It is said twenty signed membership blanks.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Brought Relief When Other Medicines Failed

Winston-Salem, N. C.—"I was weak and run-down and had trouble with my side. I had been taking medicine for a long time and nothing seemed to do me any good. My husband went to the drug store and he said to the clerk, 'I want the best medicine you have for women's troubles.' He gave him a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has helped me. In a short time I was able to do my housework, and now I am not only able to do every bit of that and washing and ironing, but I help my husband at the store."—Mrs. L. K. Myers, 1409 E. 14th St., Winston-Salem, N. C.

PLAN COALITION TO DEFEAT CUMMINS

Washington, Nov. 29 (I.N.S.)—While the Democrats are enjoying the troubles of the Republicans trying to organize the Sixty-eight Congress, open warfare between "regulars" and progressives continued today.

In the House side a large, militant group headed by Representative John M. Nelson, Republican, of Wisconsin, insisted that far-reaching changes be made in the rules so that "progressive" legislation cannot be smothered in committees without reaching a vote on the floor.

The Senate Progressives were particularly hostile because they charged administration leaders had indorsed Senator Cummins for both chairmanship of the Senate and the chairmanship of the Interstate Commerce Committee, merely to keep Senator Borah of Wisconsin out of that chairmanship.

The Progressives were making overtures to Democratic leaders for joining forces to elect La Follette to the chairmanship in exchange for Progressive support for Senator Key Pittman, Democrat, Nevada, for the Senate presidency. The proposal was given serious consideration by the Democrats at informal conference called by Senator Joe Robinson, Democrat, Arkansas, minority leader.

ROBBED WOMAN WHO HAD FAINTED

Lawrence, Nov. 28 (I.N.S.).—Frank Donsiglio was characterized one of the most dangerous young men in the State by Judge J. J. Mahoney, who today sentenced him to the Concord Reformatory. Donsiglio was found guilty of stealing $70 from Mrs. Margaret Collins while the latter was in a faint. He pretended, police stated, to be assisting the woman.

Says --- Now Stiff Joints Must Go!

New Discovery Limbers 'Em Up and Even the Creaking Ceases.

Yes; it's true—the world progresses.

All you have to do nowadays to limber up that stiff, rusty knee joint is to squeeze a half inch of miracle working substance from a tube.

Then rub it on the offending part for about a quarter of a minute or until it soaks through the skin and disappears on the surface of the body.

Then read the evening newspapers and go to bed.

The chances are that your misbehaving knee joint will lose its "creak" while you are dreaming about the high fences you used to leap when you were a youngster.

"And in the morning," says one who has tried the new discovery, "you'll feel so happy that you'll want to jump into your sportiest clothes and walk briskly down the street just to show the neighbors that you are not as old as they think you are."

Joint-Ease: They call this wonder working substance, for the reason that when ordinary remedies fail to limber up the stiff, inflamed, rheumatic joint, or reduce the swelling, Joint-Ease succeeds.

It's a good name for a good, clean, stainless prescription that in just a few months has proven to a multitude of people that lame, swollen, distorted joints can speedily have the kinks taken out of them and work as smoothly as ever.

But Joint-Ease is for bothersome joints, whether in knee, ankle, hip, shoulder, spine or finger, and for that purpose its sale is immense. Druggists everywhere report a big demand.

Joint-Ease

HEROES OF '76 IN NEW DAVIES FILM

New York, Nov. 28.—The Cosmopolitan corporation has selected "Janice Meredith" as a production in which Marion Davies will star, following her appearance in "Yolanda."

"Janice Meredith" has been adapted by Lillis Hayward from the celebrated novel of the same name by Paul Leicester Ford. Later it made an enormous success on the stage. It is a romance of the revolutionary period of American history. Famous ones who will appear in the screen version are George Washington, Benjamin Franklin, Lafayette, Samuel Adams, John Hancock, Rochambeau, a young Scotchman, Rev. Father John Corbett officiated assisted by Rev. Father Brown, Signor Prezioni, counsellor of the Italian embassy, accompanied the bride to the church. Commander Dr. Crespigny was best man.

CANADA WOULD HELP CHECK RUM AUTOS

Ottawa, Nov. 28.—Canadian and United States officials attending the international conference on liquor smuggling today got down to hard facts in their discussion of methods proposed by the American government to stop the flow of rum across the border.

Jacques Bureau, minister of customs and excise, set forth the reasons why acceptance of the American plan, in its entirety, would be difficult because it would necessitate action by the Dominion Parliament, whereas the liquor question in Canada is left entirely to the provinces.

Mr. Bureau sympathized with the proposals that American officials be informed of all shipments of liquor by automobile or by aeroplane.

Alex Johnston, Deputy Minister of Marine, was heard on the suggestions that Canada prohibit clearance of ships with liquor cargoes bound for the United States and that search and seizure of liquor smuggling vessels on the Great Lakes be authorized.

CARUSO'S WIDOW WEDS SCOTCHMAN

London, Nov. 28. (I.N.S.)—Mrs. Enrico Caruso, widow of the late Italian tenor, was married at Brompton Oratory today to Captain E. A. Ingram, a young Scotchman. Rev. Father John Corbett officiated assisted by Rev. Father Brown, Signor Prezioni, counsellor of the Italian embassy, accompanied the bride to the church. Commander Dr. Crespigny was best man.

She gets relief from DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN And so do the children

Some Families Are Never Ill

FORTUNATE are the children whose parents fully realize the seriousness of constipation. Hospital records prove that 75 per cent of all disease originates in bowel obstruction, or constipation. Young children cry because of it; school children are hampered in their studies; grown people are made 25 per cent less efficient; elderly people's blood pressure increases 28 per cent. Realizing this Mrs. Carrie Moss of 1714 Church st., Lynchburg Va., Mr. Louis C. Grahl of 1569 Winton ave., Lakewood, Ohio, and innumerable others, give a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at the first sign of constipation, and have no sickness among their children.

Largest Selling Laxative

Every up-to-date family medicine chest should contain a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and palatable aromatics, a prescription written 30 years ago by Dr. W. B. Caldwell, who practiced medicine 47 years. You can buy a bottle in any store where medicines are sold, and the cost is less than a cent a dose. We guarantee that if you will give Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin to a child or for a few nights to an adult it will relieve any case of constipation no matter how chronic, or your money will be refunded.

10 Million Bottles a Year

Use it once and you will never again take coal-tar drugs in candy form, calomel or salts. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a vegetable laxative free from opiates and narcotics. It can be safely given to infants, yet it effectively moves the bowels of adults. It acts gently, does not cramp or gripe. Keep it in the house and use it for any indication of bowel obstruction such as constipation, biliousness, torpid liver, dyspepsia, pimples and like skin eruptions. Give it early and it will break up a fever or a cold overnight. A spoonful proves it.

MALONE SCORES QUICK KNOCKOUT IN BATTLE WITH WARD

JERSEY BOY NEVER HAD A CHANCE

By JACK CONWAY

Jock Malone won The Battle of the Ring Kings.

A terrific left hook to the jaw crushed the fighting spirit of George Ward in the third round of his struggle with the masterful Malone at the Suffolk A. A.'s show at the Boston Arena.

Ward went down five times before Referee Johnny Brassill stopped the contest. At the time the stout-hearted Elizabeth, N. J., youth was helpless, though he gallantly struggled to regain his feet.

Jock Malone

It was the deadly left hook, delivered with all the power and energy Malone could muster, that decided the contest. Ward was conquered from the second that the heavy left smash rocked against his jaw and his slim body reeled back against the ropes only to drop to the canvas with a thud.

Ward was "out" physically from that moment. But with his head dizzy from the effects of Malone's crushing blow, his eyes glassy, his legs almost paralyzed, that something in a man, call it courage if you will, caused Ward to carry on.

He has the heart and soul of a fighting man, and after taking the benefit of the count of nine he struggled to his feet.

Ward's magnificent spirit sent him staggering forward. He didn't have any defence, he was too weak and groggy to attack. He lunged forward as his spirit took possession of his body. A left hook crashed to his body, a right-hand punch bounced off his jaw.

The glassy eyes became more dull, the unsteady legs trembled, the arms reached up into space as if to grasp something that could not be seen with the naked eye.

The fighting soul tried to steady the body, but couldn't. Ward fell forward much like a great steeple of a church after it has been hit by a bolt of lightning. He hit the ropes as he fell to the canvas.

George Ward.

The referee counted from one to five without Ward moving. At six there was a struggle down there on the canvas between a battered body and a fighting soul. And the fighting soul won. Slowly it compelled the tired legs and arms to move.

At nine Ward once more faced the brilliant Malone, cool, calculating, sure of himself, preparing for the delivering of the final blow which would give him a decisive victory.

LUNGED FORWARD ONLY TO BE STRUCK BY LEFT

Ward lunged forward only to be struck by a left hook to the body. And once more the New Jersey youth went to the canvas.

Ward was so dazed he didn't take advantage of the count. At six he struggled to his feet.

Despite the great excitement, Malone was masterful, cool, determined. He realized Ward was helpless, unable to defend himself. He called upon the referee to stop the contest. He didn't wish to send over the final crushing knockout.

Before the referee could render a decision, Ward pushed forward. He punched feebly and took a heavy body punch. As he was about to fall for the fourth time he gripped Malone and pulled him to the canvas with him.

Malone was on his fet like a flash, Ward at the count of seven.

Jock realized he would have to send over the kayo, much as he disliked doing so. He drove a heavy left hook to the body and as Ward fell it was apparent he was done. At three, Ward, his fighting soul still pushing him on, started to struggle to his feet. He was prepared to get up again. The referee then stopped the bout. At the time the third round had thirty seven seconds to go.

WARD'S MANAGER SAID HE COULD WEATHER THE STORM.

After the bout, Sam Golden, Ward's manager, declared he felt Ward could have weathered the storm if the referee had given him the opportunity.

Sam asserted Ward's head struck the ring as he fell from the effects of the first left hook. He says this was a big factor in causing the defeat of the popular New Jersey warrior.

The bout was a fast, sensational affair all the way. Malone's left hooks to the body and sharp right hand crosses to the jaw gave him the margin in the first round.

WARD GOT MALONE'S RANGE AND HELD HIM

In the second session, Ward began to get Malone's range and held the skilful St. Paul man even. It began to look as though it was going to be a close fight all the way. Then came the left hook which changed the entire battle.

Ward's head cleared quickly after he returned to his corner when the bout ended. He raced across the ring to Malone's corner.

"You're a pip of a fighter, Jock," he said, as he gripped Malone by the hands.

MALONE SORRY THE BOUT DIDN'T GO THE LIMIT.

"I'm sorry the bout didn't go the limit," replied Malone. "You're the last person in the world I wanted to knock out. I was hoping the bout would be close and that I would win a hairline decision."

Bob Bage, Detroit middleweight, knocked out Jack McClellan, of Somerville, in two rounds. Sage, a stable-mate of Malone's, scored two knockdowns in the first round and one in the second.

Al Lewis of the South End defeated Danny Glynn of Roxbury in eight frames.

Eddie Boyle of South Boston won on a foul over Spike Hennessey of Waltham in three rounds.

Johnny Glacken and W. T. McDermott were the judges. Kid Goodman refereed the preliminaries.

Gardner Beats Montreal

New York, Nov. 28.—Spencer Gardner, of Newport, R. I., banian, got the decision over Young Montreal, the Providence star, at the Pioneer Sporting Club in twelve rounds.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 28.—Marquette will play Vermont here in one of the biggest intersectional games in the Middle West. Undefeated for two years, Marquette feels certain that it will keep its record clean.

One of the brightest bits of news for Marquette, and a correspondingly gloomy fact for Vermont is that "Red" Dunn, the Hilltopper' great quarterback, will start against the visitors.

Dunn will be remembered as the man who played the entire game against Boston College with a broken arm, and whose wonderful running and passing were a big factor in the only defeat Boston College suffered this season.

GEORGE ROBINSON IN DRAW WITH FLOWERS

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 28.—Tiger Flowers of Atlanta and George Robinson of Boston, light heavyweights, fought 12 fast rounds to a draw by the referee's decision.

Robinson weighed 168½ pounds and Flowers 160½ pounds.

STAR JEWISH WRESTLER IN BOUT HERE

With the certainty that Joeseph Breitbarg, the world's Jewish champion, would be on hand in first-class condition, Promoter Tuohey is all set for the international wrestling carnival to be decided in Mechanics Building tomorrow. Breitbarg is one of the world's strongest men, in addition to being a wrestler of skill.

Renato Gardini

He will be paired against Franz Bruno, the Ukranian star, in one fall finish match. As Bruno is also a powerful fellow, the contest promises to give Boston fans a good line on the Jewish champion's ability.

The Italians are showing great interest in the reappearance here of Gardini after his successful trip abroad, especially as he is to meet Reggie Siki, the Abyssinian who gave him such a gruelling match last Spring. They will go to a one fall finish without time limit.

The Steinicke-Zbyszko match, which is to be best two out of three falls, may prove the undoing of the Pole, as the German is a terrific worker, coupling great power, gameness and skill with his weight and other advantages.

Dr. Stejke of Norway and Richard Schikat, the all European champion, round out the exceptionally fine program.

Hoppe and Cochran Play Here in January

New York, Nov. 28 (Universal).—Willie Hoppe and Welker Cochran will play in the world's 18.2 balkline billiards challenge match on January 10, 11 and 12 in Boston, it was officially announced by the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, which will promote the event.

The play-off of the titular tourney in which Hoppe and Cochran tied here a few weeks ago, has been set for Chicago December 17, 18 and 19.

The official ruling was made that the loser of the play-off is the logical challenger, as he must be classed second in the tourney finish.

Holy Cross Sub Will Bear Watching

Paul Kittredge, a substitute quarterback from Ansonia, Ct., will bear close watching in the Boston College-Holy Cross game on Saturday. The newcomer is a freshman at Worcester, with no other experience than upon Clinton High School elevens. He is light and weighs only 155 pounds, but he has shown a great similarity to Bill Glennon.

Jim Wallis

As the speedy Purple halfback he possesses much of the same type of looseness and elusiveness in a broken field, as well as around the ends. With Mahaney as interference the youngster should be able to do wonders.

It will be remembered that in most of the annual Purple-Maroon tussles some player has become a hero over night. Two years ago a freshman from Louisiana, almost unknown to the Eagle, made three never-to-be-forgotten plunges through the B. C. defence. The following year Brousseard did not jump into the limelight.

This time it was another freshman, Bill Glennon by name. Had it not been for roving Jack Heaphy, that lightning flash, might have punctured the B. C. line for one more touchdown than he did.

This year, although neither Glennon nor Mahaney, another star who stepped into the limelight, 1922 will be overlooked, newcomer like Kittredge and Coleman will be more seriously considered.

Jack Finn

Coleman fills in the right guard position and is the only freshman to start. He will have a busy afternoon against Doyle, as both men are even in weight.

Boston College will start two freshmen, Larkin and McKenney, both of whom have shown wonderfully well so far this Fall. Against this set the Purple will send six veterans of last year's contest: Glennon, Riopel, Mahaney, Crowley, Butler and Ray.

At Holy Cross they compare Crowley's kicking with Darling's. Those who have seen both teams in action declare there is absolutely no comparison. "Chuck" will outdistance the Purple in punting, as he has every other eleven this Fall.

In one of the games Darling reeled off two beauties for 75 yards each, and in such an objective game as Saturday, he will strive to repeat this feat more often.

Charley Carton

It is punting that has raised Darling to the great position that he now holds, as a claimant for All-America mention, if his headwork, his brilliancy as a field general, a strategist, a leader of his men, his running ability, both through the line and around the wings, and his new ability of kicking placements, in which line he has not yet failed to put over a score, be accepted.

ROXBURY SEMINOLES PLAY ROXBURY A. A

On Thanksgiving afternoon at Tech Field, Brookline, the Roxbury A. A. will meet the Roxbury Seminoles in a game to decide the championship of the Roxbury district. These two teams are bitter rivals and have agreed to play on a winner-take-all basis. The game will start at 2:30.

CHARLESTOWN TEAM WILL BATTLE TIGERS

On Thursday morning the Indians of Charlestown, with all former high school and college stars in their lineup, including Tom (Jumbo) White of Lehigh, will oppose the Tigers of Charlestown with "Dancing Cronin" in their lineup for the district title at the Emmons Playgrounds at 10:30 o'clock.

STASIAK AND TARAMASCHI ON BIG BILL

Five feature bouts will make up the card at the Old Howard's big wrestling carnival at the Grand Opera House tomorrow night. It is the most elaborate card ever put on by Matchmaker Paul Bowser. The complete program follows:

Angelo Taramaschi

Stanley Stasiak, Polish wrestling champion, vs. Milo Steinborn, German Sampson.

Miss Cora Livingston, world's lady champion, vs. Miss Virginia Marcereau, champion lady wrestler of the West.

Charles O'Donnell, Norwood police champion, vs. Tom Moore, Atlantic City policeman.

Jack Albright vs. a French heavyweight.

All matches will be to a positive finish, with Sam Smith as referee.

BATTLING SIKI GETS ROLL AND RUNS WILD

New York, Nov. 28.—Battling Siki of Senegal is running wild somewhere in the heatherland about Freddy Welsh's Summit, N. J., health farm, the elusive quarry of a searching party formed by his manager, Robert Moe Levy.

The battler, who became famous for his little runaway pranks over in France, escaped Sunday night with money in his pocket.

"Sucker that I am," Levy explained, "I give him a whole $1,000 when he asks for spending money and I tell him to be careful. But what do I find him doing in Harlem on hock later? I ask what do I find? He is making himself a colored Coal Oil Johnny and is giving away his money, just like that.

"I try to make him quit, and what do I get? I get chased, but I get away, and later we capture the Hatter in a taxicab he goes and we drive to Fred Welsh's out at Summit, a whole $37.80 worth, which I have to pay. Then I open the door and the Hatter leaps out like a panther, swings to the limb of a tree, jumps a fence, whoops and is gone.

"It is the first time I tried to keep a Senegalese. First, I'm afraid I won't find him, then I'm afraid I will. Anyway, if you see anybody who sees him, tell him to come home and everything is forgiven."

Providence, R. I., Nov. 23.—Tomorrow will be Thanksgiving in Providence as well as in any other place in New England. The natives here know it better, however, as the day on which Brown plays Lehigh There is nothing better to top off a good dinner than a good football

Twenty-five thousand spectators are expected to be on hand when the opening whistle looses the big Brown Bear against the Lehigh eleven from the coal regions of Pennsylvania. The game will finish the season for both teams, and naturally they are both determined to win.

For the last thirty years or so Lehigh has always ended its season against Lafayette; but this year, on account of the fact that the team had to journey north to meet Brown, the game was played last Saturday. Lafayette defeated Lehigh by a 13 to 3 score, but the boys from the coal belt are full of fight and hope to defeat Brown.

Brown has shown flashes of real football this season, but seems to have a tendency to fight only when scored upon. The one big exception to this habit was the Harvard game, when the Bear clawed the Crimson in a 20 to 7 victory.

Against Dartmouth, Brown also displayed great strength, but got started so late that the big Green team nosed out a 16 to 14 win. Tomorrow the Bear intends to let loose its strongest attack at the kickoff and secure, if possible, a safe lead over the visitors.

After the victory over Harvard, Brown seemed to lose much of its pep, but defeated New Hampshire State last Saturday by a 6 to 0 score. Intensive drilling all this week has wakened up the regulars to the fact that they have a job on their hands to defeat Lehigh, and the Bear should as a consequence, be in its finest fighting trim.

Philadelphia, Nov. 23.—For popular interest the game between Cornell and Pennsylvania at Franklin Field rivals the biggest contests in the land. Harvard and Yale can fill the bowl, the Army and Navy can crowd the Polo Grounds, but could Franklin Field seat 100,000, there is no doubt that it would be filled to its capacity.

There has been an unprecedented demand for tickets for the game and the huge crowds that packed the stadium all this Fall have caused the athletic authorities to consider enlarging the field to accommodate 80,000.

All Philadelphia looks for a grand comeback of the Red and Blue team, and Penn will make a superhuman effort to dethrone the Ithacans, who are one of the few undefeated teams in the East.

It will not be Coach Dobie's fault if Cornell loses. He has been working day and night to whip his team into the best possible shape. It is considered that this year's eleven is even greater than the unbeaten Cornell eleven of last Fall that was led by the great Edgar Kaw.

Pere Marquettes and Fittons in Battle Tomorrow

Tomorrow afternoon at Fenway Park, at 3 o'clock, the climax of the independent football season in New England will come.

The Pere Marquette, K. of C. of South Boston, champions of New England, will meet the Fitton A. C. of East Boston.

The teams are very evenly matched. The average age is twenty-four years. Fitton's average weight is 170 pounds, Pere Marquette's 169 pounds.

The Fitton Club is in good condition. The Casey's squad with the return of Quarterback McNevin are in good condition with the exception of Eddie Dullea, who sustained a broken leg in last Sunday's game with Quincy Wanderers.

The Caseys after winning ten straight victories feel that on Thanksgivings afternoon they will add one more to their record and will retain the title of champions of independent football of New England. The Fittons are confident that they will regain the title that they lost las year.

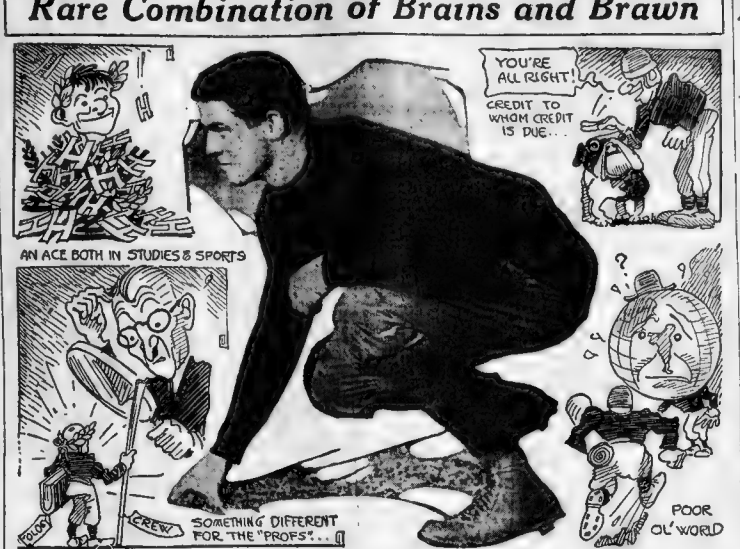
Rare Combination of Brains and Brawn



JEWTRAW WILL BE AT ARENA OPENING

Charley Jewtraw, who will show at the opening of the Arena Saturday night, has been notified that he has been selected to represent this country in the Olympic skating carnival to be held at Chimonix, France, in January.

George Brown

Jewtraw is the international speed skating champion and holds three world's records. Jewtraw holds world's records for the 220-yard dash with a mark of 18 4-5s; 100 yards at 9 2-5s, and the half-mile at 1m. 16 2-5s.

He was developed by Pete Dube, who brought out the great Bobby McLean. Jewtraw has skated since 1914, and in 1916 won the international junior title. Last year the champion won the $500 Adirondack Gold Championship Cup.

Jewtraw is only nineteen years old. He is more than six feet tall and weighs 180 pounds.

He is ambitious to enter M. I. T. and become an engineer.

NEW ENGLAND'S TEN MILE RUN THURSDAY

The 21st annual New England 10-mile championship run will be held Thanksgiving morning under the auspices of the Queen Quality A. A. of Jamaica Plain. The start will be at the corner of Centre and Bickford streets. Seven prizes will be awarded the runners finishing in the first seven positions. The start will be at 10 o'clock.

Captain Hubbard of Harvard Rates in Group A in Sports and Studies

By NICK FLATLEY

Much has been said and written about brains and brawn in athletics. We have had struggles between the two in World's Series, on the gridiron, everywhere else, and an anxious world still wonders when the verdict can be handed down.

Sometimes sheer power knocks off the intelligence very easily; just as often grey matter prevails over muscles and sinews and things. Looks like a fifty-fifty proposition from where we perch.

Get the combination and you have something. For instance, take Captain Charlie Hubbard of Harvard football. He's one of the very best football performers in the universe, and at the same time starves even his professors with his knowledge of "ologies" and such like, in the class rooms.

His own team had an unfortunate year, but nobody will ever be able to tell what might have happened had Saturday last been a pleasant day. Captain Charlie's team had been prepared for that one contest. Everything else was neglected, with Yale as the objective.

Dartmouth, Holy Cross and even Princeton were taken in the regular course of events. The Crimson licked the Tiger, which made the year a partial success. The Crimson was ready to surprise Yale but mud and rain and impossible playing conditions swamped all hopes.

SHREWD STUFF WENT INTO WATER BUCKET

Young Mister Hubbard and his athletes didn't have a chance to do anything but pray, and their prayers couldn't have been as sincere and earnest as the Blue supplications. Which was natural perhaps, Yale not having won from Harvard in many years.

Neither brains nor brawn made much difference in that football game, and all the shrewd stuff that was prepared through a year's preliminaries went into the water bucket. Which was tough on Hubbard.

For Captain Charlie is probably the smartest football player in the country. Through his college career he has been collecting crew and gridiron numerals, and also more honors and scholarships and serious laurels than a team usually gathers

Captain Charlie is rated in Group A—than which there is no higher—in the scholastic summary. He leads all his classes in everything with almost painful regularity.

The profs who declare in their best pedagogic manner that athletics and studies cannot be combined to the advantage of either look him over with as much awe as the hoi polloi guards who bite the lawn before his irrepressible charge.

Hardly an athlete in all Harvard history has compiled such a splendid classroom record as the football captain of this particular team. His average for his course is 3¼As and 2¼Bs, a remarkable combination of the two highest possible marks.

CLASS LEADER SINCE HE ENTERED HARVARD.

Captain Charlie has been one of his class leaders ever since he was a freshman. Though his ability to gradick, his will probably lead the 1924 seniors with something to spare.

He has won the Francis H. Burr scholarship, the college's highest honor, a scholarship given in memory of a great athlete to the individual who shows the most remarkable qualities of character, leadership and athletic ability of all the native sons of Harvard.

He is a member of the Dickey and Delphic and Varsity clubs, and could join a dozen others. He is taking a special course in engineering, and so isn't eligible for Phi Beta Kappa, which only rich markers can join. If he was taking the regular course, he would probably be president of the same.

READY TO TACKLE WORLD WITH FIGHTING SPIRIT

Captain Charlie has been number 6 on the crew the past three years, and this is his third season of varsity football. He was a star with the freshman outfits in both his favorite branches of sport.

He's as modest as clever, and doesn't like to talk about his accomplishments. But then, they speak for themselves.

Hubbard prepared for Harvard at Milton Academy, where he was one of those super-schoolboys. As soon as he gets his college degree he will tackle the world with the same carefree spirit that sent him into three apparently impossible Ya-le games full of hope.

Victories over Yale ran in the Hubbard family last Saturday. Winant Hubard, Charlie's brother, played on the two Crimson elevens that clawed the Bulldog before Charlie joined up. Charlie has enjoyed a couple of wins.

This young man, who is twenty-one years old, six feet, two inches tall and 190 pounds heavy, says that Yale had a mighty good team.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 23.—Pittsburgh will have the battle of the season on its hands when it meets Penn State in their annual Thanksgiving battle. A record crowd is looked for when the Nittany Lions and the Pittsburgh Panthers begin their frolic.

Penn State has spent the last two weeks in putting the finishing touches to its driving attack, and is all set to go. Coach Hugo Bezdek expects that his men will come through and tie the Panther's tail in a knot.

The Penn team is in excellent physical shape. Every player on the eleven is full of fight and determination to win. The team is not handicapped by injuries and will have no alibis to offer if they are defeated.

Pittsburgh is a hard fighting eleven that has shown great strength this Fall. The Panthers are sure that they can stop Penn State, although they expect quite a battle before the Nittany Lions are subdued.

English and Latin in Classic Tomorrow

By FRED C. LANE.

The big event in the life of every school football player is at hand. To take part in the Thanksgiving Day game is the reward for ten weeks of hard drill and work. Then again the chance to win the coveted letter is presented the lad fortunate to play in this big game.

The big game in Boston will be played at Braves Field. English High will meet Boston Latin.

The spectators may witness also the annual tussle between Commerce and Dorchester. Both games will be played on the same field.

A new champion will be crowned on the result of these battles. English is tied with Commerce for the title. To pick the winners of these classics is risky business, yet I think English High and Commerce High should win.

In the Suburban League the game between Malden and Medford is easily the best schoolboy game of the day. Medford leads Malden by a point for the title and the title will go to the winning team.

Medford looks for a stubborn fight with Malden.

Malden is not so strong for this game as when it played Haverhill early in the season. Since the Newton game Malden has not had the full strength on the field. Players were so severely injured in that contest that they were forced to remain idle for the season.

JACKSON HAS PLAYED ONLY THREE MINUTES SINCE.

"Sheep" Jackson, the dusky flyer, has played only three minutes of football since that hectic contest and will be unable to start against Medford. McCulish will play in his place. Malden fans look forward to Charlie Holden, end, and Haipin, the centre, to save the team from defeat.

Both are line players of note and have been the big factors in the Malden defense. Joel Shields, Harry Payne and Melanson will carry the ball for Malden. The Medford success has been due to the line.

Whether or not the Malden backfield can penetrate such a defence must be proved. Unless the Linemen can open up their usual big holes, the Malden chances of victory are slim. In fact Medford will be a big favorite when the teams take the field.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

What can be done to help out farmers who need help?

The cold truth is that very little can be done for those who do not know how to help themselves.

• • •

We have been hearing a lot about farmers who have gone bankrupt and who have had to give up. The fact is spoken of as if it were something extraordinary, as if there should never be failures among farmers.

There are failures in every line of industry. Since January 1, there have been 16,800 commercial failures in this country. Last year there were 23,400, and in 1921, there were 20,000.

A certain percentage of failures are to be expected in all kinds of life.

• • •

A recent analysis of a large number of failures reveals that a great majority of the farmers involved were not practical farmers at all, but barbers and bootblacks and bartenders and actors—everything but men brought up on the farm.

• • •

All this does not mean, however, that many competent farmers have not suffered serious financial embarrassment during the period of low prices. Wheat farmers have suffered.

The politicians may promise much. But they can do little. They may offer sops and they may do something purely temporary by dipping into the public treasury.

• • •

Co-operative marketing, if intelligently gone about, can also improve the lot of our wheat farmers. But it can not bring about the Millennium. A great deal of nonsense is written about the losses sustained by wheat growers who have to "dump" their product on the market as soon as it is harvested. Facts proving the fallacy of the idea were printed some little time ago in this column. It was clearly shown that farmers who sell their wheat promptly get practically the same returns as those who withhold their wheat until later in the season.

• • •

All this may sound harsh, inconsiderate, even cruel. But the time has come to get down to brass tacks and to indulge in stern facts and realities, not in sophistry and impossible promises designed to win votes but not calculated to help our farmers one iota.

Profit-Taking and Bear Selling Are Evident in Parts of New York List

RAILS ACTIVE WITH ERIE LEADING

Profit-taking and bear selling were evident in parts of the New York Stock Exchange's pre-holiday list. Railroads were active with Erie leading. Money started at 4% per cent.

Davison Chemical was weak in initial trading, off a point rose 3 from its day's low, then lowered again.

There were setbacks of 2 or more points for Gulf States Steel, Cuba Cane pfd. and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe. Schulte Stores and Maxwell "A" were off over 3.

Point or more recessions were registered by American Car & Foundry, American Ingot, Mack, Goodrich, Maxwell "B," Industrial Alcohol, Tobacco Products A, Corden, Virginia Carolina Chemical pfd., and Central Leather pfd.

The Pan Americans were soft following announcement of new financing. Pan-American Petroleum, for six months ended June 30, reports consolidated net profit of $14,259,009 after interest, depreciation, depletion and federal taxes, equivalent to $5.57 a share (par $50) on outstanding 2,557,830 shares of common stock. This compares with net profit in seven months ended July 31, 1923, of $18,451,931, or $13.25 a share (par $50) earned on outstanding 1,403,535 shares of common.

Jones Tea was up 2, but lost more than half its gain.

Rutland Railroad Pfd. is Feature in Boston

Rutland Railroad pfd., which had not previously appeared on the tape this week, had a sudden burst of activity today on the Boston Stock Exchange, selling repeatedly up 6 points at 35.

Hardy Coal was up 2¾, Fairbanks rose 1 at 8. Massachusetts Gas pfd. and B. & M. Class D lowered a point or more.

Utah Consolidated, the stock that sold at $79 prior to 1911 and paid dividends for 14 years to 1918, sold at 3 cents, another record low.

Market Notes

BRISTOL Manufacturing Co. of New Bedford declared regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent, payable Dec. 1.

PRESIDENT PEARSON of New Haven said October surplus after charges was around $340,000 and he expected November surplus would be about same.

GRINNELL Manufacturing Co. of New Bedford declared regular quarterly dividend for fourth quarter of $1.50 and extra dividend of $1.50.

HUB TRUST CO. stockholders voted to change name of the bank to the Bank of Commerce & Trust Co.

ALTHOUGH directors of Montgomery Ward will not resume dividends on the 205,000 shares Class A stock this year, action is expected early in 1924.

GENERAL MOTORS Acceptance Corporation declared initial dividend of 8 p. c., for 1923, payable Dec. 15.

INTERNATIONAL General Electric Co. reports orders of $400,000 for transformers to be used in Japanese reconstruction.

NORTHERN PACIFIC plans $36,000,000 improvement program over three year period.

BOND HOUSES expect initial Maryland Oil financing to take the form of a $10,000,000 issue of first mortgage 6½ per cent bonds to be followed by $5,000,000 debentures.

PAIGE-DETROIT increase in authorized common from $4,900,000, $10 par, to $10,000,000 was generally accepted as forerunning a stock dividend.

Medford Man Tells Court Long Name Hurts Prospects

Only one thing stands in the way of wedding bells for Franklin H. Freudenberger of Medford.

That, as he describes it, is his loathness to "burden" the coming generation with a four-syllable name.

He has accordingly petitioned in Middlesex Probate Court to have "Freudenberger" Freudenlerger also states that his present cognomen is a deterrent to him in his business. He is employed as a fire insurance investigator.

Will Franklin H. Freudenlerger become Franklin H. Howell? That is a question for the courts to decide.

SALLIES TO FEAST 1,200 CHILDREN

Twelve hundred children from the poorest homes in Boston will have a regular old-time Thanksgiving dinner in Ford Hall tomorrow.

The Salvation Army will be host to the young people and if they don't bulge like Skinny Shanar by the time they finish it will not be the fault of Colonel W. A. McIntyre and his cohorts.

While the dinner is preparing the young folks will be entertained by professionals provided by the Boston Rotary Club. Mayor Curley will speak.

Then there will be a scramble for seats. Bulging eyes will behold more food than the kids ever believed there was in the whole world. Chickens and vegetables and pies and everything. When every plate has been scraped clean the children will file out, receiving a big red apple and a bag of candy at the door.

FORD TO ERECT COTTON PLANT

An attempt to simplify the manufacture of cotton goods has been started by Henry Ford in Detroit, according to announcement today by Logan Cleveland, Ford executives, of No. 24 Federal street.

The local company has begun experimental work on the first unit of a plant; Ford is to install at Highland Park.

The first unit will have only 10,000 spindles in

Lizard Skin Latest Leather for Women's Footwear

Cleveland, Nov. 28.—If my lady adopts the recommendations of the styles committee of the National Shoe Retailers' Association and the National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' Association for Retail Selling she will have her feet shod with alligator and lizard hide—genuine or imitation—between January 1 and Easter.

The committees' reports introduce a myriad of new colors, including racquet, bombay, alizadah, tannery, mandalay, jack rabbit and other. Shades will get lighter as the season progresses and styles will be affected by the geographical location.

PET DOG BURIED IN OWN CASKET

Meredith, N. H., Nov. 28.—Tottie, an unusually intelligent Irish terrier owned by Marie Rickert of Meredith, was buried in a specially constructed casket made of the casket factory where Miss Rickert is employed. In the tiny casket were placed the canine's plaything. Tottie was at one time owned by Mrs. P. Livingstone of Beacon street, Chelsea, Mass.

THE BED BUGS ARE COMING, HURRAH! HURRAH!

There is really no reason to cheer about the bed bugs, for there can be no real satisfaction in anticipating a visit from these pests, but they are coming nevertheless in increasing numbers all the time. Better take no chance short time for a bottle of Stearns' Bed Bug Poison. So if they gain a foothold in your premises you are ready for any miserable annoyance. Don't wait until they are—They crowd into the cracks, crevices of the floors, behind loose wallpaper or get into the crevices of the bed. They get into stuffed furniture and chair pressure to manifest itself. Some people say they will experience a nice, husky nip and upon investigation discover it's the bed bug at his indoor sport. They have a family of generations and disease germs which doesn't endear them to any one.

Our advice to every one is to exterminate them at once if you would enjoy comfort, good health and peace of mind. This can be done expeditiously by the use of Martin's Bed Bug Powder. It is safe, odorless and easy to use, and 100% effective. Sold by all drug and department stores for 40c and $1.20 per can. 40c and $1.20 by mail. Send money order, check or cash with mail orders. Postage rates very accurately to points west. Specify powder desired, as we manufacture stronger Bed Bug Powder for other household pests. All registered in Washington.

Blackstone street in the North End of Boston was laid out at a cost of $80,000, an extraordinary amount for that period in the city's history.

False Economy Will Not Prevail Here

People Will Not Permit Sabotage of Savings Bank Life Insurance

A gentleman, perhaps connected with our regular old line life insurance companies, wants to know when the State of Massachusetts is going to stop paying the expenses of savings bank life insurance and make the insured pay the overhead cost of their life insurance as those who take out life insurance in the private companies are obliged to pay the overhead cost of their life insurance companies.

The question is pertinent, but we do not believe it has ever been DIRECTLY raised by the old line life insurance companies. The State will never abandon the policy of paying the overhead cost of the savings bank life insurance because the dividends to the citizens of the State are so great. As a matter of fact, the dividends to the citizens of the State of Massachusetts on the overhead cost of public life insurance is over 2,000 per cent. Every year this system saves to the people of Massachusetts $260 for every dollar paid out of the State Treasury. In the year 1921 the wage-earners of Massachusetts alone paid for weekly premium insurance to the big industrial companies more than $20,000,000. Had it not been for the existence of savings bank insurance they would have had to pay for the same amount of protection more than $26,000,000. The saving of that $6,000,000 in one year to the people of Massachusetts is directly traceable to the establishment of savings bank life insurance.

When do you suppose that the people of Massachusetts will permit the sabotage of a public enterprise like the savings bank life insurance, under the plea of economy? The dividends on its overhead are 2,000 per cent. Cheese parers and false economists may talk until they are deaf, dumb and blind, but they will never be able to scuttle the savings bank life insurance enterprise in the name of a false economy. Many crimes have been committed in the name of false economy, but the misleading jade will be spared the onus of another crime in this instance. We shall not try to save a little sweat around the spigot and thereby waste a river's flow at the bunghole.

Concerning Mr. Zangwill

The New York Evening Journal Described One Phase of His Character Twenty-five Years Ago

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

Mr. Zangwill crossed the ocean to address the Jewish Congress, and his speech turned out to be a plentiful throwing of cold water on the entire Zionist project.

He explained carefully why in his important opinion the Jewish homelands in Jerusalem could not be made a success. Samuel Untermyer and other able men interested in Zionism criticised Zangwill severely, amazed at his lack of sympathy with a movement into which he had injected his personality in so unwelcome a fashion.

But, in reality, there was, however, nothing new or nothing that could not have been anticipated in Mr. Zangwill's anti-Zionist utterances. Mr. Zangwill, a fairly able literary person, treats Judaism very much as an entomologist might treat an interesting bug, to be dissected without any especial sympathy. Judaism is "copy" to Mr. Zangwill and rather cold-hearted copy.

Twenty-five years ago, the New York Evening Journal, observing Mr. Zangwill's attitude toward his co-religionists, expressed a definite opinion concerning him in the following editorial, published in the Evening Journal editorial column on November 30, 1898.

"ZANGWILL IS A POOR JEW"

"The Jews of this country, pretty shrewd citizens, as a rule, are invited to investigate a little more carefully the methods of Mr. Zangwill, over whom they are making such a fuss.

"This gentleman, industriously heralded by his press agent, Major Pond, as a noble type of his race, seems to us to be engaged in coining the alleged weaknesses of the Jews into valuable cash.

"A careful reading of his book on the Ghetto causes this fact to stand out: Any reporter writing as Zangwill has written of the Jews, or the Irish, or the Chinese, or the French, or seven of the dudes or any other class, would be discharged for offensive class prejudice.

"Mr. Zangwill shows us a Jewish synagogue 'shivering with awe' at sight of a golden sovereign. He describes a gathering of vulgar, ignorant, lying, toadying Londoners and tells us they are Jews planning for the revival of the glories of Zion.

"It may be all right for one clever Jew to enrich himself by making game of his fellows. But if the Jews tolerate that from one of themselves they should not be sensitive regarding criticism from other races.

"The American Jew bases his just claims upon the fact that he is an American among Americans, in sympathy with the country, tolerant and progressive. The Zangwill view of the Jew sees in him one filled with conceit, with an egotism held in restraint by cowardice, and it is not a pleasant view. It would be a good thing for the Jews of America —while proud of Zangwill's undoubted talent—to reject him as an exponent of Jewish character."

Japan's Great Loss

The World's Most Costly Afternoon

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

Definite figures on the Japanese loss are overwhelming. The number of deaths is put at 245,000, a number equal to the entire standing army of Japan.

The loss of money is so great that Japan is practically considering reducing her naval and military budget by half, "relying on the outside world not to attack Japan in her period of recuperation."

That's a perfectly safe reliance as far as the United States is concerned, and probably safe as far as the rest of the world is concerned, civilized or uncivilized.

The total losses are placed at two hundred and twenty-five BILLIONS, which must be an extreme exaggeration. But it is certain that in all the history of the world there never was so much life and money lost in one single afternoon as was lost on the day of Japan's earthquake.

HEALTHIEST TOWN IN ENGLAND

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Everington, in East Yorkshire, stakes its claim as the healthiest town in England, according to its vicar, the Rev. Maistre.

Rev. Maistre says he has not had a funeral in his parish for three hundred inhabitants for over three years. Doctors are unknown in that part of the world, he says.

Love Only Once?

Editor Boston American:

In reply to R. J. Frank, as to whether it is possible to have one or more genuine love affairs in a lifetime. Only once in life can there ever be a genuine love. I have been the victim to love most sincerely only to find men to be most unfaithful; pretending their love genuine, but looking for a new love each day. I have learned men are fickle and never love as women love. At least, I loved most sacredly, but paid the price.

Hard on Fritz

Editor Boston American:

Oh, you're too hard on Prince Fritz, who looks just like his great grandmother, Queen Victoria. And now you blame him for starting the war! But you conceded for a long time that England did. We shouldn't bank on looks. The world adores its idols, without regard to the fashion of their make.

Oh, let us be more charitable! I wouldn't like to dub anyone as a fool, so long as the diplomats of civilization are suffering such rabid dementia.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON CENTRIFUGAL FORCE

By Garrett P. Serviss

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"In a discussion this evening one party maintained that a ship traveling in the same direction that the earth turns, weighs less than it would if traveling in the opposite direction. Is this a fact?"—M. W., New York.

THEORETICALLY, yes, on account of the centrifugal force involved. Anybody traveling horizontally on the surface of the earth considered as a sphere tends to move, at any instant, in a tangent to the radius, which means at right angles to a straight line drawn from the moving body to the centre of the earth. To simplify the situation suppose the moving body to be on the equator, and for a ship substitute a railroad train running on an east-and-west "level line."

Force of Gravity

The force of gravity directed toward the centre, at each instant changes the direction from a straight line (tangent) to a circle. This gives rise to centrifugal force, whose amount, is measured by the square of the velocity divided by the radius of the circle, i. e., of the earth. Centrifugal force is opposed to gravity, and its effect is to diminish the weight of bodies on the earth's surface in the ratio of that force to gravity.

Calculation shows that on the earth's equator, with its present rate of rotation (one turn in 24 hours), the centrifugal force is equal to 1-289th of gravity; in other words, regarding the earth as a sphere, bodies on the equator lose by centrifugal force 1-289th of their weight as compared with what they would weigh if there was no rotation.

The condition of no rotation and consequent absence of centrifugal force exists at the poles. At places between the poles and the equator the centrifugal force is proportional to the cosine of the latitude. For instance, in latitude 40 degrees, the loss of weight through centrifugal force is about 1-377th; at the poles there is no loss.

We are now ready to start our train running on the equator. Suppose it runs eastward, the same direction in which the earth turns. Then its velocity is in excess of that of the earth's rotation (the two being added), and the centrifugal force acting on it must be greater (though by an infinitesimal amount) than that acting on a body at rest on the equator, wherefore the weight of the train must be diminished, though ever so slightly.

Now we are coming to something almost dramatic—one of those possibilities of the innumerable forces amidst whose play we exist which we may dream of mathematically though it be never realised in our experience. Centrifugal force increases in proportion to the square of the velocity, the radius remaining unchanged.

That being so, imagine the train to increase its speed until it becomes seventeen times the speed of the earth's rotation. I choose the number seventeen because, as we have seen, the centrifugal force of the earth's rotation diminishes the weight of bodies on the equator by 1-289th part, and 289 is the square of seventeen, the number of times that the speed of our imaginary train exceeds the speed of the earth's rotation.

Don't you see, then, that the flying train, by virtue of its centrifugal force, would lose just its whole weight? The fraction 1-289 being multiplied by 289 becomes equal to unity, or 1, which means that gravity below the line has been exactly counterbalanced by centrifugal force above the line, with the consequence that the train is, as it were, suspended over its tracks, just touching them without pressing upon them. Increase the speed still more, and the train would fly off into space on a tangent!

Loses Weight

This shows why a ship sailing eastward loses weight, though of course to an infinitesimal amount. But when the ship, or the train, travels westward, i. e., against the earth's rotation, what happens? It gains weight because its velocity being now only the difference between the speed of the earth's rotation and the speed in the contrary direction of the moving object, the centrifugal force acting on the latter is diminished.

Theoretically, this principle causes the couples whirling on a dancing floor to weigh now more, now less, according to the speed and direction of their movements! But I need not say that the effect is far too slight to be perceived. There are many other most curious results attributable to centrifugal force, which I have not room to describe.

HEROINES OF HISTORY

MRS. OLIPHANT'S COURAGE

By Mark Stuyvesant

IT is surprising how many women writers have embarked upon their careers either in an effort to forget some great sorrow, or to support their families when they have suddenly found themselves widows or destitute of any other means of support.

The lives of many of these writers are absorbing in interest as those of the heroines whose lives are chronicled by them.

Among these authors is Margaret Oliphant Wilson, known throughout the English-speaking world with great affection as "Mrs. Oliphant."

"When I thus began the world anew, I had for all my fortune about a thousand pounds of debts, a small insurance of, I think, two hundred pounds on Frank's life, our furniture laid up in a warehouse, and my own faculties, such as they were, to make our living and pay off our burdens by."

These are the words which Mrs. Oliphant herself used in describing the desperate straits in which she found herself at the death of her husband. She was penniless. She was not a strong woman. She had a large family of small children, several of whom were very delicate and needed the best of care, expensive medicines and constant medical attention.

She was born in "The Heart of Midlothian" in 1828, and like the famous Sir Walter Scott, who has made that country famous in his beautiful novel bearing the title just quoted, Mrs. Oliphant set out to write of Scottish life.

So beautifully did she write, and with such charm and warmth did she depict scenes from the land of her birth, that soon she found herself successfully emerging from the great difficulties which had descended upon her with her widowhood.

Although her life was one of great activity and tremendous responsibility and worry—for she had much illness to cope with in her young family—Mrs. Oliphant was never discouraged.

It is said that she often sat down to write with a breaking heart and with her brain almost numbed by anxiety. But realizing what her efforts would mean, she would quickly emerge from her slough of despond, summon her courage and write with vigor and inspiration.

With the publication of "Zaldee," Mrs. Oliphant's name came before the public and she was moderately discussed. But when "Chronicles of Carlingford" was presented to the public her success was assured. From then on Mrs. Oliphant was able to provide comfortably for her family, and her struggles were at an end—after fifteen years of effort.

THREE-MINUTE TRIPS

HOW ENGLISH NAMED CITIES

By Temple Manning

IN journeying about Europe, Americans are frequently surprised to find that the names of many of the principal cities are totally different from the names taught in our schools. It would be supposed that the natives of a country or a city had a right to name their native places, and that their names would be the right ones. It is due to the liberties taken by English-speaking peoples that we hardly know a great European city by its proper name. Of course all Americans know that the French ignore the fact that they live in Paris and insist on living in Paree, but that is only a matter of pronunciation. Yet the Bavarians never heard of a capital called Muenchen. And the Austrians are impudent enough to deny the existence of Vienna. The capital of that unfortunate country is Wien.

Warsaw is another Anglicism. Vasovia is the name of Poland's capital.

How would Americans feel if the English called New York, Yamptown; Boston, Beanwich; Chicago, Porkville, etc. That is the way the Continentals regard the English system of renaming all their cities to suit themselves.

The total inability of the English to pronounce foreign names is the explanation of the practice. They simply come as near to a foreign pronunciation as they can manage, and then spell the place the way they mispronounce it; hence Vienna for Wein, Munich for Muenchen, Florence for Firenze, Leghorn for Livorno, Warsaw for Vasovia, Naples for Napoli and so on.

Children Need Clothes

Editor Helping Hand:

I am the mother of two children, a boy three and a boy one, and I expect another baby in a few months. Two months ago my husband deserted me, and now I understand he has gone back to Italy. I have asked for help from a charity in Waltham, but they told me they could do nothing until arrangements had been made to bring my husband back. In the meantime I am dependent on the kindness of neighbors. If I could get clothes for the two children and the baby coming I would be very grateful.

MRS. M. C. 4.

Generous Offering

Editor Helping Hand:

To help the fine work you are doing, I have a few things for someone if you will send me an address. They include a warm coat for a girl eight or ten, overcoat for a man size 35, shoes for a girl size 2, coat for a girl fourteen, two serge dresses for a girl fourteen or sixteen, pair of house shoes size 6.

Thank you. You have been sent the address of Mrs. E. H., who has five children, and whose husband is out of work.

Pair of Blankets

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a pair of blankets and a quilt which I will be glad to give Mrs. M. H. Kindly send her address.

MRS. H. C. G.

We have had no Mrs. M. H. asking for blankets, but are taking the liberty of sending you the address of M. C., who asked for quilts. Thank you.

For Boy of Twelve

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a suit, hat and several pairs of pants that would fit a boy twelve or thirteen, two coats, a skirt and other things for a girl of fourteen, a box of cloth and some old shirts that could be used for patchwork or rugs, a Victor typewriter that will need a new ribbon and perhaps some minor repairs, a pair of crutches medium size, a white enamied bed and spring. I would like to have the last things called for, but would send the clothes parcel post.

MRS. L. W. L.

This is a fine list. You have been sent the address of A. A., who will be grateful for the clothing; the address of C. H. for the bed, the address of M. N. for the pieces, and we will hold the typewriter for replies. Thank you.

TO UNDERSTANDING HEARTS

You who have followed the Helping Hand in its more than a year of existence know better than others the suffering that constantly exists about us. Those of you who could, have shown that you know it by your unstinted help and encouragement.

Because, then, we know you have an understanding heart, the Helping Hand Editor wishes to call your attention to the Christmas Basket Fund which, with your help, will provide a Christmas dinner for many thousands of families who would otherwise find the Yuletide pretty cheerless. Details of the fund will be found on an inside page of this paper.

Held for Reply

Editor Helping Hand:

I would like the address of G. C. S., the man who asked for an overcoat size 50. I have one that else that will fit him, but if he has been supplied, send me the address of someone else who wears that size.

MRS. A. M. L.

G. C. S. has been supplied, and we have no other requests for a coat that size on file, so we will hold your kind offer for a reply. Thank you.

Has Four Children

Editor Helping Hand:

Is there any of your kind readers who could help me out? I have four children. There are two girls, eleven and four years old, and two boys, six and fifteen months. They are very badly in need of clothes, and I do not know what we are going to do. The boy six needs an overcoat very badly. My husband, who was a sheet-metal worker, lost his arm some time ago, and he has been unable to find work for the last five months, although he is willing to do anything. We have no coal, and not very much food. If we don't get help soon I don't know what we are going to do.

MRS. A. G. S.

For Girl of Nine

Editor Helping Hand:

Here is a list of things I have that would fit a girl's size or ten years old. Two coats, one dress with bloomers, one bathrobe, three pairs of sport socks with inside stockings, a tam and scarf to match, a pair of shoe skates, size 3, that are in good shape.

MRS. J. C. C.

Many thanks. You have been sent the address of Mrs. W. W., who has a girl of nine in need of clothing. The skates will cheer some poor little girl's heart a lot, and we will hold them for replies.

Address Wanted

The editor wishes that Mrs. L. M. M. of South Boston would send in her address. Letters sent to the address on G street have been returned, and we would like to learn her correct address.

Has Fine List

Editor Helping Hand:

I have numerous articles of clothing which may prove helpful to some needy family.

MRS. C. C. B.

Many thanks for the fine list, which was too long to publish. You have been sent the address of Mrs. V. P., who has a large family of little ones. Many thanks.

Sends $1 for Each

Editor Helping Hand:

Give one dollar each to Mrs. L. M. and Mrs. O. D. Why does God permit such misery?

MAC.

You are one of the most consistent among our anonymous helpers. Many thanks for all the help you are passing along. Mrs. L. M. and Mrs. O. D. have been sent the money as you request.

Sincere Thanks

The editor wishes to express his sincere thanks to the following people for their generous offers of assistance to those in need. They have been sent the addresses requested:

Mrs. A. E. Revere—Coat for G. R. T. Miss M. D., Cambridge — Patchwork pieces for Mrs. E. C. W. Mrs. F. C. C., Springfield — More patchwork pieces for Mrs. E. C. W. Mrs. E. M. L. and Annie. A. J. S., Lynn—Things for Mildred. C. E. P., Boston—Help for G. C. S. Princess ——— Boston—Elastic stocking for Mrs. L. R. B. L., Boston—Help for Mrs. E. C. W.

STELLA DALLAS By Olive Higgins Prouty

New and Intensely Interesting Serial of a Marriage of an Educated Man to an Untutored Woman

HOW THE STORY STARTED

Stella Dallas and her husband, Stephen, do not live together. They have a daughter, thirteen years old, named Laurel, who stays most of the year with the mother. These two are now at a Summer hotel in New England, where the other guests look askance at the painted, overdressed elder woman. The time has come for Laurel to visit her father in New York. He meets her at the station and takes her to a hotel.

By OLIVE HIGGINS PROUTY

Author of "Bobbie, General Manager," "The Fifth Wheel," "The Star in the Window," Etc.

"THAT wasn't all. Her father felt sure it wasn't all. But many of her thoughts he was unable to follow to their source. A faint suspicion disturbed him. Surely the allowance he sent to Laurel's mother was sufficient.

He could vouch that as long as a sure three hundred and fifty dollars was coming to Stella every month, she would live well wherever she was. She delighted in living well.

"Why should you be thinking about cheap rooms?" he asked.

"No reason," Laurel replied shortly.

She was not going to tell him anyhow. That was clear. Useless to coax her.

Before he left for the night, he said to her, "I really think you'd like it at Mrs. Morrison's, Laurel."

"Do you want me to go?"

"Well, I want you to know Mrs. Morrison," he replied. "I feel that when you are with me I must give you the best of everything I can, Laurel, and when Mrs. Morrison invited you to stay with her I was very happy to give you the five whole days of life in her home."

"If it's just for me, then, I think I'd rather stay here, if you don't mind."

Stephen looked down at a book on the table and opened it. He was standing up all ready to go.

"I don't mind," he said, gazing at the printed page, but not seeing it, "only," he went on, "I should feel sorry, I suppose, if you didn't like some little present I'd picked out for you which I thought very nice. And so, too, I suppose I shall feel a little disappointed if you don't wish to go to Mrs. Morrison's." He closed the book. "But of course I don't really mind. You're the one to be pleased."

He did mind. He minded awfully. He always minded when his voice was low and serious, like that.

"I'll go," said Laurel.

"Oh, you don't have to, my dear."

"I'd like to go," she assured him brightly, which was true. Laurel would like to do anything to please her father.

Laurel was to go to Mrs. Morrison's the following Monday. She dreaded the visit. She was suspicious of women, and especially suspicious of mothers. One of the reasons Laurel always looked forward with joy to the month with her father was that there never were any slights—never any fear of slights. His presence seemed to prevent the possibility of slights.

Everybody to whom he introduced her in his fine proud manner as "my daughter Laurel," treated her with the same kindness—almost deference — with which they treated him. Mrs. Morrison had been kindness itself to her a year ago, at tea in the hotel, but her father had been there then. Ladies had a way of being kind when men were about, Laurel had discovered. It was being left alone with Mrs. Morrison that she dreaded.

Besides, Laurel knew very little about the etiquette of private homes. She was familiar with the ways and customs of a hotel. Knew the proper manner to assume toward waiters and porters and clerks, knew, too, the proper fee to pay bellboys and chambermaids, if she ever had to do anything for her, which she seldom did, for dimes and quarters were never freely squandered by Laurel and her mother on ice water or extra blankets for cool nights.

Laurel thought of her mother, all dressed up for the movies

But she was uncertain about the proper manner to assume towards servants in a private home. In the Winter-time she and her mother lived in an apartment hotel. How many servants were there usually, anyhow, and what did you call them, and what fee did you give them? And when, and how, and for what. Or didn't you give them a fee at all? And just how, she wondered, should you dress in a private home?

Did a girl of thirteen change three times a day, for instance, and put on an organdie for dinner? And who did her hair? Miss Simpson, it appeared, was not to accompany Laurel to Mrs. Morrison's. Miss Simpson wasn't very good at hair. She never even attempted curls. But she could get snarls out, and brush, and divide fairly well, under direction. Laurel was helpless without somebody.

Laurel mentioned none of her perplexities to her father. If she did he might wonder why it was she knew so little about homes. It might reflect upon her mother. For at the private school she attended in the Winter-time, she often heard intimate friends talking about spending nights with each other. Laurel had no such intimate friends at the school. That she hadn't was one of the many galling failures of Mrs. Dallas' ambitions for her daughter. Laurel was not unaware of it. No. Her father should know nothing of her ignorance.

On many topics Laurel was as frank and open with her father as was artless child. But she had her reservations, she had great expanses of thought and experience she never let him glimpse at. She never mentioned her mother's name to him. She made as little reference as possible even to her life with her mother. By the time she was thirteen this silence had become like a wall between Laurel and her father. Stephen was aware of it. It loomed high and blank between them, and shut much of Laurel away from him. But it also shut much of Stella, too.

What Is the Effect Upon the Two and Especially Upon Their Strange and Beautiful Child Laurel?

Once the mention of Stella's name, even as "mother" on Laurel's lips, had hurt Stephen. The years had cured him of the hurt, but still he thought it wiser to let the barrier remain. For one reason—it was kinder to Stella. Laurel's silence made it easier for him never to criticize Stella and, therefore, appear to harbounce the child against her mother.

There were many things to criticise, and if they were brought to his attention in detail, he would be sure to alter them. This he could not do without interference with Stella. Interference with Stella would open new issues, and lead to unpleasant complications. And after all Laurel was Stella's child. Stella had been necessary to Laurel. He could never have been a nurse to a little girl of six. Had he been determined to control Laurel's bringing-up, then he ought to have been willing to have endured Stella. He had made his decision. He had never regretted it.

He took Laurel down to Mrs. Morrison's in his automobile. She talked very little as the car sped over the smooth roads, through pretty settlement after pretty settlement. When finally Stephen announced, "The next town's ours," Laurel murmured miserably, "You'll surely be back for me Saturday, won't you?"

Stephen laughed. "Surely," he said. "Why, you'd think I was putting you in an institution." And a little later he sang out cheerfully, "Here we are at the prison gates!" and turned the car in between two cement posts, partly ivy-covered, and up a short curving drive.

The house was cement, and partly ivy-covered, too, like the posts. It was set low, seemed to cling to the ground, and the close-cropped lawn ran right up to long French windows on either side of the front door.

The long windows were open, and from out of one of them stepped Mrs. Morrison. She waved her hand at Stephen and Laurel, and called out in a high pretty voice, "Hello!" then walked rapidly towards the approaching car to meet it.

Laurel noticed that she was dressed in an ordinary white skirt and dotted waist, and wore tennis shoes. She was at the door of the car when it stopped, and, before Laurel had had a chance to open it, she had stretched out her arm in front of him—ignoring him completely—grasped one of Laurel's hands, and was saying in the lovely voice Laurel remembered, "Hello, Laurel." She said "Laurel," not "Lâurrel"—like most people.

Her voice was like a bell. "Im ever so glad to see you. I've been waiting and waiting for you. Get out, dear. Let her out, Stephen." She hadn't paid any attention to Stephen till then. "Your trunk has come," she said, still addressing Laurel, still ignoring her father—or almost, for she flung him only the briefest little "Hello," as he stepped out of the automobile beside her—"and for the last hour I've been thinking you yourself were coming every time I heard a horn blowing outside our drive."

As Laurel stepped off the running board, Mrs. Morrison put her arm around her and kissed her lightly on the cheek. Afterwards she left her arm there in a casual sort of way as if she forgot to remove it.

"Let's come into the house this way," she suggested, and gently drew Laurel across the lawn towards the French windows. "I've tea and cakes all ready," she said in a low tone, as if it was a confidence not meant for Stephen's ears. "And cinnamon toast." She gave Laurel's shoulders the tiniest little bit of squeeze.

Arm in arm with Mrs. Morrison, Laurel stepped across the low threshold of the French window into a big, generous, library-sort of room, with a grand piano at one end, and books all around the dark walls.

It was as easy as that, getting into the house, and all of the way down Laurel had been making herself miserable wondering just how it would be accomplished—whether Mrs. Morrison would be the butler as in most movies, to answer the bell, or a maid; and if the butler or the maid took your suitcase, like bellboys in hotels, or if you just held onto it yourself. Laurel's father had told her that he must run directly back to New York, after leaving her at Mrs. Morrison's, to catch his train.

She had supposed that he had meant he couldn't even see her across the threshold. But no. He followed her into the big room, carrying her suitcase himself, and showed no sign of hurrying away.

There was an Irish setter in the room, lying down by a big chair as Laurel entered it with Mrs. Morrison.

WHO SAID IT AND WHERE

"Adam's fall. We sinned all."

Verses from the New England Primer of Puritan days.

"The good die young."

"To die in harness."

How often, even in these days, men say they want to "die in the harness." The expression dates back to Old Testament times. In II. Maccabees, we read: "Nicanor lay dead in his harness."

"Dreams go by contraries."

This familiar remark appears in "The Family of Love," by Thomas Middleton. 1570-1627.

"Some books are to be tasted."

Said Sir Francis Bacon (1561-1626) in his essay "Of Studies."

"Till the cows come home."

"Ily night an atheist half believes in God."

The poet, Edward Young, in his "Night Thoughts," from which the line is taken, gives an extended description of the effect of night's gloom on the mind. Among other things, he tells of the fear it inspires even in an atheist.

"Tell the truth and shame the devil."

We all have at some time used this. Shakespeare has it in his play, "Henry VI."

WHAT THE STARS SAY

UNLUCKY DAY FOR TRAVEL

TODAY'S horoscope holds many conflicting figures, from which the astral seer must prophesy peculiar or sensational episodes. These may be manifest most noticeably in the social or affectional relations, although business, too, and finance may develop some singular phrases. Avoid speculation. It will be a lucky day for journeys.

Friday beware of unwise speculation.

WAYS OF A HUSBAND

SEQUEL TO "WHEN A GIRL MARRIES"

By Ann Lisle

WHEN she had finished she said scruptly:

"Pat telephoned of Jim's accident and that Dracia Avoy and her husband were looking out for him. She's a good sort, and you can take it for granted that she'll stand by as staunchly as if she were another man. I've an idea you and she would pull very well together. She's so much more—human than Ruth."

Ann Lisle

Then she turned and swung out of the private office. And without permitting myself any time for morbid analyses or introspection I got right down to work. I put in a hard day whipping things into shape so that I could go to Pat tomorrow with the second payment of Nell's debt.

In the late afternoon, I received a telegram. I took it for granted that it was from Gracia MacAvoy, but, to my utter astonishment, Jim's voice sounded over the wire.

"Anne, I'm out in Miss Gregory's shack, in Marmouth Hills," he said, evidently not yet informed of my visit to his bedside while he was unconscious. "The MacAvoys are here and another couple. The hostess herself is back in town."

"Yes," I replied tentatively, and at a loss to discover what was expected of me.

"I had a little cramp while I was in swimming—nothing to worry about, but I was sort of dazed, and they called a doctor, who refuses to let me be moved for a day or so. You understand, don't you, dear?"

"I—understand," I replied with restraint.

"I'm quite all right. And I'll be in as soon as the doctor permits. There's nothing to worry about—nothing of any sort," protested Jim. "You understand, don't you, that it's quite—all right in every way—my being here and all—my state of health, I mean?"

"I understand perfectly," I replied. "I'm sorry you were hurt—but glad you have a pleasant place to recuperate."

To save my life, I couldn't call up any warmth to my voice. For something in Jim's manner made me struggle with an unhappy question:

"Was Jim's message prompted by love—or fear?"

After all the anguish I had gone through getting together the first payment of Neal's debt to Pat and Carlotta, the second instalment seemed to come very easily. There wasn't a hitch. Hard work and careful planning plus the utmost frugality enabled me to gather the sum at the exact time I'd set for myself. It seemed like a good omen promising that hard work and stick-to-itiveness would be crowned with victory in the greater cause—my search for Neal.

When I telephoned Pat on the day after my return from the nightmare week-end at Ruth Gregory's, I began to feel like a shipwrecked mariner who sees a steamer in the offing. I made the appointment in such an exuberant tone that Pat asked:

"Did anyone die and leave you a million? Tis as apt as the only heir to Captain Cook's fortune, you sound, Alanna."

"Oh, I'm just after waiting impatiently for your visit, though 'tis sorry I am you're so set on paying me off as if I had the soul of a money-lender," responded Pat heartily.

"I'll be there in half an hour," I said. "And you needn't try to argue me out of my joy in making these payments, Pat, for there's nothing in my days that gives me half as much satisfaction. See you later."

After I'd hung up the receiver, I realized that I had forgotten to request him to summon Carlotta to the transaction which involved her fully as much as it did Pat. But I wondered if there was something in the new psychology which says we forget what we don't want to remember.

As a matter of fact, I didn't want Carlotta present at my interview with Pat, since after I'd paid this second sum toward Neal's debt, I really looked forward to a confidential chat with Pat alone. I wished to enlist his aid in calling of Virginia from her cruel suggestions about Jim and me.

YOUR BEAUTY

A SERIES OF PRACTICAL VALUE

By Marla Jeritza,

The Famous Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company and One of the Most Beautiful Women of the Day.

THE line of the chin from the lips to the neck may be inexpressibly graceful and lovely. Too often, however, it presents a contour so far from beautiful that instinctively the gaze turns from it. And ninety-nine times out of a hundred this sagging, drooping double chin—so fatal a foe to beauty—is not the fault of mature nor old age. It merely evidences neglect.

Often a person who is lazy lets her chin droop because that seems easier than holding it erect. The result is relaxed muscles of the neck and chin and, finally, a double chin.

But indolence is not always the cause. I have known a woman far from middle age—in fact, just past the first years of her youth—to begin gradually to develop a double chin with its unbecoming folds of flesh, while all her other features remained freshly-youthful. And the reason was not fat to seek.

She was working hard — much harder than she should have worked and harder than usual—under strain. Hours of close application over a typewriter were accustoming her to let her head drop, partly from habit, partly from exhaustion. And more than a little of mental weariness and discouragement were taking their toll.

Then someone who knew her well warned her. This woman was clever enough to profit by suggestion. She was grateful for the well-meant warning and began at once to order her life more wisely.

Here is an exercise my friend practiced to strengthen her muscles and accustom herself to holding her chin erect and free, like a bird that looks up bravely and brightly while it sings its song.

This exercise will help you, also, to limber up and strengthen the muscles of your throat and chin. It should be practiced in the morning, just before your tepid tub or shower. But you may like to try it during the day, too, while you rest for a moment from your work.

Either sit or stand with your back and neck straight. Turn your head as far as you can to the left. You will find yourself looking directly over your left shoulder. From this position bend your head up and down as far as you can. Return to first position. Now turn your head in the same manner to the right, and looking over your right shoulder, raise and lower your head. Repeat ten times, or until you are tired.

Incidentally, this exercise, practiced faithfully, will improve the circulation of the blood through your scalp and head, and in this way help to rest your eyes and lend to the beauty of your hair.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

(1) Will you please tell me what is the proper thing to say when some one tells you that he or she is glad to meet you?

(2) Is it proper for a woman to tell a man she is glad to have met him?

L. C.

SAY something that indicates that the pleasure is mutual: "Thank you. I am delighted to have met you, too. I hope that I shall see you again soon (or some time)."

The way you say it makes it either just conventional or significant.

(2) Yes. Usually the one leaving says these words first.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When addressing an envelope to a gentleman friend is it proper to write: "Mr. Jack Cohen" or "Jack Cohen?"

R. V.

BE sure you put the "handle" on any names on an envelope. Not to do this is really in the nature of an affront to the recipient, even though of course it is not meant to be.

And it is best not to put nicknames on an envelope. Is Mr. Cohen's name Jack or John? If it is John you should write "Mr. John Cohen." The best form in addressing an envelope is to observe strictly the rules. Use no nicknames and no abbreviations.

This is the best form for a social letter:

Mr. John King Cohen,
94 West Eighty-first Street,
Chicago Ill.

Medbury Says—

By John P. Medbury

A NEW YORK man by the name of Jack Yellen has solved the domestic problem by writing a song entitled, "Mama goes where papa goes, or papa don't go out tonight."

THIS song wasn't written for sentimental purposes, but it won't be long before every wife will be humming it instead of "Home Sweet Home."

BECAUSE the door that lets papa out, ain't necessarily going to keep mama in.

IF father claims he has work to do at the office, it's up to mother to go down and help him.

OF course there are some places where men have to go alone, such as bachelor restaurants and Turkish baths.

ONE dame said she trusted her husband as far as she could see him, but she was near-sighted.

SHE had faith in him, but she didn't have much confidence in other women.

BEFORE marriage, a man spends most of his time thinking up excuses to get into his girl's house. But afterwards he spends the same amount of energy trying to get out.

HOWEVER, most wives are intelligent. When papa has to go out to sit up with a sick friend, mama goes along with him and sits on the other side of the bed.

SO, girls, whenever your hubby tells you he has to hurry down town on important business, just start humming the new matrimonial anthem, "Mama Goes Where Papa Goes, or Papa Don't Go Out Tonight."

TO MAKE TIME PASS QUICKLY, MAKE YOUR JOB INTERESTING

If you are not getting some enjoyment out of your job you have not the right spirit toward it.

If it does not please you when you view a piece of work which you have done well, you are not interested enough in your work to make a success of it.

Is it possible that you can spend your time in any kind of constructive work and not enjoy it?

You grumble often about the humdrum life you live.

You see nothing to it but to get up in the morning to go to work and then to go home from work and get to bed.

As long as you look upon your daily toil in this way you will certainly feel disgruntled.

Why not try a week of actually trying to see the good points about the business—your daily occupation?

You will be surprised to note how quickly time will pass and how much better satisfied you will be if you will change your attitude and study the different phases and advantages of that daily job, "your work."
